Dear Alumni and Friends,

At Potomac, the way in which we teach and learn together keeps us connected in many ways—but particularly as a caring community. We have a strong tradition of nurturing and supporting our students and embedding our ideals and values in every successive generation. As our children progress through Potomac, a steadily evolving bond among students and faculty develops, so that by the time graduation comes, their roles are almost indistinguishable.

How does this happen?

In his Baccalaureate address last June, science teacher Bill Peery thanked the students for the great honor of asking him to speak on behalf of the faculty. He described the honor as a gift that extended to his family who were in attendance. And he described the gift of teaching at Potomac as a “big gift bomb in the pool of life and the ripples just keep spreading, affecting more and more people.”

English teacher Mark Dewey also addressed the community, using Annie Dillard’s Teaching a Stone to Talk to speak about hope and miracles, but mostly about planting a seed that will grow. He said, “. . . miracles and the stories of miracles come down through generations, by way of hope, persistence, and continuity—whether we see them or not.”

That hope, persistence, and continuity are among the gifts that our faculty impart each day. Potomac is a school of great teaching, but it is much more. It is a community of learners. We are, at all times, mentoring and being mentored. The bond among students and faculty transcends role and age and other distinctions we tend to make. That’s what you come to appreciate over time, more than the victories, more than the achievements.

This issue of the Term focuses on the lasting connections that all of us make through our Potomac experiences. We hear from a few Potomac teachers who were once Potomac students, as well as a parent of alumni who imparts a bit of advice and wisdom to our graduating senior class. All share their insights and their love for the place to which they returned to keep spreading the ripples.

Warm regards,

Alumni Teachers at Potomac

By Tom Macy

Be it lengthy or not, when a period of time passes at a successful school, it is natural to speculate whether or not it has retained the core values and goals with which it began. Perhaps most importantly, is there a recognition by former students of the experiences they held important when they return and observe as adults what is happening presently? By asking several of these former students, a number of them distinctly qualified to respond because they returned as teachers, it is apparent that Potomac continues to retain a unique character that positively persists and that would undoubtedly delight its founders.

Cathie Kaplan '73 helps students investigate nature in outdoor science class.

Willia Fales Eckerberg '54 came to speak to the Class of 2013 who were then in third grade. The purpose of her visit was to tell the students about what Potomac was like when she attended on California Street. After describing some of her experiences, she and the current students realized that they had both built terrariums, had known a love of fresh air and outdoor activities, and had learned many of the same songs. They even sang together the "Big P-O-T-O-M-A-C" song. At the conclusion of her visit, Willa remarked enthusiastically, "I can't believe that fifty years later, on a completely different campus, these children are going to the same Potomac as I did. It is still the same school!"

Eve Auchincloss Lilley '60 has had a long and distinguished career in the educational field and now provides diagnostic testing on an as-needed basis for fourth, fifth and sixth graders at Potomac. She related the following: "What I see at Potomac today is what I experienced as a student: a happy community of nurturing, highly dedicated teachers amongst a very cheery and engaged group of kids. There is little question that Potomac has perpetuated its fervent interest in the whole child and that the arts are ever present (children rehearsing for plays, musical instruments being hauled to class); as is the academic curriculum. The teachers also seem as inventive and creative as I recall them."

Cathie Davis Kaplan '73 returned to Potomac in 1982 to teach Lower School science. Her ten years at Potomac as a student ... "were filled with happy memories of teachers and classmates, walks on the nature trail, assemblies, classes, field trips, and athletic games. Those were years that I cherish, and are the reasons that I returned to be a teacher." Cathie finds that technology (i.e. computers) has created the largest change from when she was a student "but it is not a substitute for the teacher-to-student interaction that is so much a part of the Potomac environment." The many activities she cites above remain to this day.

Bern Hoffmann '86 returned to teach in the Lower School. He says, "I quickly found that the Lower School remains the same. The hallways are still a colorful display of childhood artistic display where chocolate milk and crackers entice even the most disciplined of passers-by. The library is a hub, the art and science rooms excite the students as much as they ever did, and most essentially, the warmth and safety of the community combined with the joy of discovery are still the norm for students and teachers alike." When a student commented to Bern one afternoon after dismissal that "Wow, you're kind of like a real teacher here," it gave Bern "pause to consider one more thing. When as a teacher you are drawing heavily on a past filled with the likes of Mrs. Trott, Mrs. Ivorian-Jones, Mrs. Bullock, Mrs. Edelson, Mrs. Davornik, Mr. & Mrs. Hebel, Mrs. Lindsten, Mrs. King, Mr. Morgan, and Mr. & Mrs. Lee, being on the other side of the desk takes on a completely new dimension: one that I consider a great honor."

Alison Weisgall '00 is a "lifer" and returned to teach and share her love of the Classics "in the place where I first discovered the beauty of ancient languages. I find great comfort and continuity in the way I can still identify with Potomac as student and teacher. So many things have stayed the same: we still use the Cambridge Latin Series; many former teachers are now my colleagues; and Mr. Sheerin is still teased and feared." Alison continues by saying that much has changed, what with construction and with technology, but that this is positive. "The school's mission remains the same, and Potomac continues to find resources to enhance students' learning experience." She also has learned that "a dedicated and innovative faculty is the linchpin of a successful school." She mentions Mr. Cox, Mr. Harding, Mrs. Cahill and Mr. Bergman as special mentors to her. Alison recently left Potomac for further education but says, "Ten or fifteen years from now, I think I will still find generosity of spirit and a passion for knowledge at Potomac."

It is apparent from the above observations that Potomac retains and maintains the qualities for which it has been well known, recognized and appreciated for many years. The School's "DNA" is intact and highly visible. Curriculum, activities, the visual and performing arts, the dedication and talent of the faculty, and the sense of a nurturing and supportive community are crucial to the School's success and continuum. The founders of the School would blink, perhaps, at the buildings, the technology and the size of the student body, but they would certainly recognize and applaud the longevity of the core values in which they believed and which they so wisely promoted.

Potomac Graduation Speech

June 12, 2006

Thank you, Dan, and congratulations, class of 2006. I am truly honored to be here today. I must admit to feeling more than a little trepidation on being asked to address you this morning. For weeks I struggled to find just the right inspiration to share with you on this very special day in your lives. Then a friend reminded me that no one ever remembers the keynote address from their high school graduations....and I calmed down.

And now that I have set the bar appropriately low, let's begin.

“Now, for the advice....
today you close one chapter of your life and begin another.”

There are three individuals who are no longer with us, but who are very much here with me today. They are; my late husband and the boys' father, Richard Bennett, Nora Mancha and David Civali. Each of them in a very special way has played a role in forming and informing the remarks I am about to present and I want to thank them for that.

I would like to start by saying a few things about Potomac School and what it has meant in my life. I came to Potomac much like many of your parents, the mother of a new lower school student. It was 1986 and our oldest son Kevin had been admitted off the wait list in June to that year's kindergarten class. I couldn't have imagined at that time how important this place would become to us. Eventually, all three of our children were students here, passing through all four divisions of the school. During our journey, we found life-long friendships, inspiration and guidance from teachers and administrators, and comfort through difficult times.

But the single greatest gift that Potomac School gave us was the extraordinary care and understanding it gave to our children. It was this care and understanding that helped our boys gain a "sense of self" that became their best asset in the years that followed. I would like to personally thank the faculty and administrators for being one of the most remarkable groups of professionals I have met in any field.

It is with great admiration, respect and gratitude that I stand here before you this morning, hoping to share something of value with your students whom you have taught so well.

Please join me in thanking the faculty and administrators for all of their hard work and dedication.

And now graduates, would you please join me in thanking your families, because you couldn't have reached this milestone without them.

Now, for the advice....Today you close one chapter of your life and begin another. And as a mother, standing here before you, I can't pass up the opportunity to share just a few of life's lessons I have learned along the way.

I also have the rare opportunity of having all three of my 20-something year old sons in the audience, so this is a chance to remind them, yet again, of the things I think are most important. (I can just see them rolling their eyes right now!) Relax, boys, I've narrowed the list to seven.

1 Learn who you are and who you're not, and get comfortable with that.

None of us can be everything to everyone. None of us can know everything we will need to know to get us through this journey of life. You can only excel in life, either professionally or personally, by being yourself. I know it seems like I'm stating the obvious and more than one of you are probably thinking "Duh," but it is surprising how many people you will meet who don't really get this.. I can tell you with all certainty that the most impressive, intelligent, and successful people I have met in my life are those who know who they aren't and who are genuinely okay with it. Accepting your humanness is actually quite liberating and certainly more productive. Once you accept that you can't know or be everything, you can go about the task of finding the answers to the unique challenges of your life, wherever those answers may lie. And that's really what life is all about; facing challenges and overcoming them. Now, this doesn't mean that you can go off to college and not work hard. You are growing up in a very competitive world. But at the end of the day, it's okay if you're not the best at everything. No one else is, either.

2 Real growth comes mainly in times of challenge....

It's in these times that you have to dig deep to find the resources to deal with life. Many of you have had a pretty easy life so far. We parents try to protect you from danger and the pitfalls of life. That's our job. At some point, though, our job is to "step aside" and let you face all of life's challenges head-on. That is one of the most difficult things a parent has to do, but maybe one of the most important. Every cell in our body is programmed to protect you. But you will not grow and become the whole, strong person you need to be unless we parents rise to this challenge.

3 Every positive has a corresponding negative.

In life, nothing good comes without a price and nothing bad happens without a silver lining. We've all heard the old adage "There is no free lunch." And it's true, there is none. Knowing and accepting this fact will allow you to navigate life with far fewer surprises and disappointments. The real key is to be ever mindful of the cost attached to something (a job, a relationship, an opportunity) and be sure it is one you are willing to pay. The flip side of this is, no matter how disappointed you may be in a situation or outcome in life, you will likely look back on it and be grateful in some way for the opportunities it presented and the lessons it provided.

4 Travel

The world is shrinking at an astounding rate. Events on the other side of the globe will shape the way you live. And ideas from different cultures will shape how we view each other and the world. Your future, our future, will depend on your generation's ability to understand people of different cultures. We are all sharing this planet and must find ways to live and thrive together.

5 Ideas

Embrace them... play with them... challenge them. But most of all respect them; even if they are not yours or not consistent in some way with your thinking. The truth can only be found by freely exploring a full range of ideas with an open mind. And the truth is the only real path to understanding.

6 Love

Our ability to love is a great gift. Avail yourself of this gift fully. Love is the one phenomenon that defies the laws of nature. Giving love freely doesn't diminish your capacity to love; rather the more you give, the more you have to give. So, love your family...love your friends...and most of all love yourself. We are all complicated souls. We all have strengths and weaknesses. No one in all the thousands of years of history has mastered the art of personal perfection. Strive to be the best you can, but love and embrace who you are; and learn to love and accept others for who they are, as well.

7 Be there for the people you care about

One of our primary challenges in life is to get to the end with as few regrets as possible. Life gets busy with all kinds of things; work, schedules, obligations...But there are moments when your family or friends will need you to be there for them. The obvious times are days like this, a graduation, a wedding, a funeral or even a special birthday. Don't miss it. The only real regrets I have are the times that I did.

And finally, I leave you with a quote that we discovered many years ago on a family vacation in the Florida Keys. It appears on a sign at a fishing marina. There is no attribution on the sign, but I have since discovered that its author was Theodore Roosevelt. It is entitled "This is Why".

"Far better it is to dare mighty things, to win glorious triumphs even though checkered with failure, than to take ranks with those poor spirits who neither enjoy much nor suffer much because they live in the grey twilight that knows not victory nor defeat."

Congratulations, class of 2006, we are very proud of you. Take time to celebrate this very significant milestone. Have wonderful lives and remember to come back and share them with us here at Potomac. Thank you.

"No one in all the thousands of years of history has mastered the art of personal perfection. Strive to be the best you can, but love and embrace who you are; and learn to love and accept others for who they are, as well."

Dear Fellow Alumni,

Welcome back to an exciting year at our alma mater! This Fall, the doors of our new Upper School opened to provide an innovative and cutting edge learning facility. While the building is different, students will continue to learn and to engage with their teachers and each other in the same ways we remember. And although the walls may be new, our mission to educate the whole student through academics, arts, athletics and community service remains true, as do the many special traditions we all treasure.

I'd also like to announce changes in the Alumni Office. Jinene Christian has been named the Deputy Director of Annual Fund and Alumni Relations, and Anita Homan is now Director of Alumni Relations. We wish Maria Graceffa well in her new endeavors at Sidwell Friends.

We are planning exciting events for alumni and hope you will join us on campus this year to relive memories and to connect with former classmates and teachers. If not on campus, we hope to see you at the regional receptions and college dinners at locations around the country.

The Campaign for Potomac's Future is going strong and the next phase includes a new Lower School. Our primary years at Potomac were particularly special because of the rich and nurturing learning environment provided by our teachers. As you have read, this issue of the Term includes stories about former students who returned to Potomac in a new role: the role of teacher. I am so fortunate to still see some of my teachers regularly. In fact, for the past few years, my third grade teacher Mrs. Bullock welcomed my children every morning to Potomac School's Summer Programs. My former art teacher, and now neighbor, Mr. Hebler, was recently party to one of my son's bug catching expeditions. Watching Mrs. Bullock and Mr. Hebler engage with my children in the same wonderful ways they did with me so many years ago truly warms my heart.

Sincerely,

Victoria Esposito

Journey to Ethiopia

STUDENTS, ALUMS AND FACULTY BRING HOME CHALLENGES

By Ali Bhanji, Director of College Counseling, The Potomac School

Our city-bred driver from Addis Ababa steered the four-by-four off the dirt road to cut short our journey to a water project in rural Woliso. Suddenly, a woman came running towards us, brandishing a stick, yelling, and hitting our vehicle. Apparently, we were in the midst of her potato field. As we looked around, it was clear that our vehicle had ripped her potatoes from their roots, leaving a trail of debris behind us.

Thus began one of our encounters with real life in Ethiopia. The idea of the exotic disappeared fast, and we found ourselves in the midst of a conflict that forced us to question our values. The driver started arguing with the woman, and seemed unrelenting and unapologetic. To those of us witnessing the incident, the solution seemed easy; the driver ought to apologize and pay the farmer for the potatoes. But there was clearly another dynamic at play that we only later came to understand. It appeared that the male driver from the city was not about to apologize to a female farmer from the hills. We had stumbled on a gender, class, and rural/urban conflict—a conclusion we reached based on snippets of conversation and our own analysis. We “Westerners” saw clearly the right course of action. In fact, one faculty member from our group got fully involved and insisted that the driver pay the farmer. Finally, sensing our discomfort, the driver took a few Birr out of his pocket and gave them to the woman. She was not appeased by the gesture, and it wasn’t until he apologized and embraced her that a reluctant peace was restored.

The 2006 LearnServe Ethiopia group consisted of thirty students and teachers from ten different Washington-area high schools, including Potomac student ambassadors Trevor Lewis '06, Brittany Carroll '07 and Gennie Parker '08, who were accompanied by faculty members Steve Goldberg and me. LearnServe Ethiopia is a program run by the Center for International Education, which is housed at the Washington International School. While LearnServe’s goal was to expose participants to a world very different from their own, the students also involved themselves in various projects from helping to dig water pipe trenches, painting a world map on a school wall, and tutoring Ethiopian children. But, most significantly, we were forced to question our existing biases and opinions. We grappled with our differing approaches to human interactions, analyzed the complex role of religious organizations and non-profit groups, and interacted with heroic individuals working to improve individual lives in a country with few economic resources and poor infrastructure. Armed with our experiences, we have returned with the hope and responsibility of sharing with a greater audience the complexity and the array of needs in countries where people are barely able to eke out a daily physical existence.

Perhaps the most contentious issue we confronted in Ethiopia was the role of religion and economic development in a land of limited resources and diverse peoples. While consistent figures are hard to find, most sources list Christianity as the religion with the largest following. Muslims constitute a significant minority; in fact, some sources place the followers of Islam at 40% of the population. While individuals from both faiths co-existed side-by-side, many of the children we encountered were decidedly centric about their faith, and barely tolerant of the other. At one of our nightly gatherings, the LearnServe students expressed how they felt uncomfortable whenever their Ethiopian peers asked them to what religion they belonged—particularly because they felt judged based on their response.

We visited two rural projects run by two very different organizations; one was Christian-based and the other was a non-religious NGO (Non-Governmental Organization). While each provided opportunities that significantly improved people’s lives, their approaches were quite different. The first, called Project Mercy, was started and run by a couple who escaped imperial Ethiopia in the 1970s to live in Fort Wayne, Indiana. They returned to the village of Ytebon with the hope of raising the standard of living in this area. Marta Gabre-Tsadick and Deme Tekle-Wold have, in fact, literally transformed this village outside the town of Butajira through their education and health care projects. They also introduced new methods of farming and showed villagers how to develop and export high quality baskets for higher profits. At Project Mercy, Marta and Deme have adopted forty "house children" who had no other place to go. From our limited perspective, the only aspect of their development efforts that gave us pause was the restrained, serious, almost adult demeanor of these children, as well as their conviction that salvation was unavailable to anyone who believed differently from their brand of Christianity—in a society fairly evenly divided between Christians and Muslims.

Back in Addis Ababa, the attitude of the children living at Hope for Children, an organization that helps displaced children of parents with HIV or AIDS, was in sharp contrast to what we observed at Project Mercy. We saw happy kids who communicated easily and who appeared ready to explore their inner talents. The teenagers performed—dancing to traditional Ethiopian music, singing, and even demonstrating some rap and western dance moves that enthralled all of us. Their demeanor was more in line with what we in the West think is healthy and positive for children. Yet, the founders of both Project Mercy and Hope for Children had saved kids from suffering in ways that most of us in the West cannot comprehend.

In addition to those working with organizations, there were individual heroes bestowing new life to those who might otherwise have seen no hope. Dr. Rick Hodes, a Jewish American who had adopted 15 Ethiopian children, all of whom were "unadoptable" because they had spinal tuberculosis, cancer, or some other deadly ailment, was one such selfless worker. Imagine giving children chemotherapy on your back porch. Imagine arranging to send kids whose spines were so bent that their chests met their abdomens to the best facilities in the world for treatment. And this was in addition to his day job. The night we visited Dr. Hodes, he and his helpers prepared food for over 60 people. Our students laughed and joked with his children, bonding as they tried to sneak peeks at the World Cup soccer match on television. Here, in our presence, was a saintly figure doing what many of us who have good intentions only think about.

We anticipate that our student ambassadors, who hailed from a variety of public and private schools, will carry forward LearnServe's mission by raising awareness and resources for some of the projects they witnessed. And if even one of them goes back to Ethiopia to give of their time and of themselves at some point in the future, then LearnServe's expectations will have been surpassed. These are but baby-steps toward the societal transformation of the world's most economically disadvantaged peoples, but they are steps, nevertheless.

UPPER SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION COMPLETED!

NEW BUILDING OPENED SEPTEMBER 7TH

The new Upper School is open, marking the halfway point of The Campaign for Potomac's Future! The state-of-the-art Upper School has new classrooms and science labs, a huge library (nearly 5,000 sq. feet), a three-story "Crossroads" gathering place, theater, and college-style tiered classroom. The new building is now the cornerstone of our interconnected K-12 learning environment. It has also helped us increase enrollment (we added 25 additional students this year), enrich the curriculum, and enhance our connection to the natural environment. And we're proud to say that the facility is environmentally-friendly, and energy efficient, strengthening our school-wide focus on environmental stewardship.

The Parents of Alumni Committee kicked off its inaugural meeting in April 2006 under the strong and able leadership of Bobbie & Bill Kilberg. Having five children attend Potomac, spanning four decades, the Kilbergs embody all that is Potomac!

From Right: Bill, Jonathan '94, Bobbie, Gillian '97, Sarah '95, Andrew '06, and Cameron '98

"The Potomac community will always be a part of our family. For 27 consecutive years, our children have attended The Potomac School and they have benefited immeasurably from the values that are imbued in everything we do here. Whether it is a history lesson, a music concert, a baseball game, an art project, a community service commitment—there is something uniquely "Potomac" about how we approach the task and how we assess the result. Our traditions have provided a gentle, respectful and creative framework for generations of children to grow and mature and we feel very fortunate that our five children have had the opportunity to participate in this educational community. We now watch our three young pre-school grandchildren run on Potomac's playgrounds and recreate memories for us from years ago, while also causing us to look forward to the next generation which will benefit from the very special place that is Potomac. Potomac has our long-term commitment to its future generations. We can think of nothing that is more important."

THE NEW LOWER SCHOOL PLANNING REFLECTS THE PRESERVATION OF CHILDHOOD

“Our overarching goal is to design a building that will reflect our respect for childhood...to construct a safe and nurturing environment where children can learn and grow,” said Donna Lewis, Head of the Lower School. “The building will be the intersection of the people and programs that support Potomac’s mission and philosophy.”

Play always has been recognized as an important part of the Lower School day. Through carefully designed indoor and outdoor spaces, children will be provided with many opportunities to explore, create, collaborate, wonder, solve problems, develop social skills, and find enjoyment while at play.

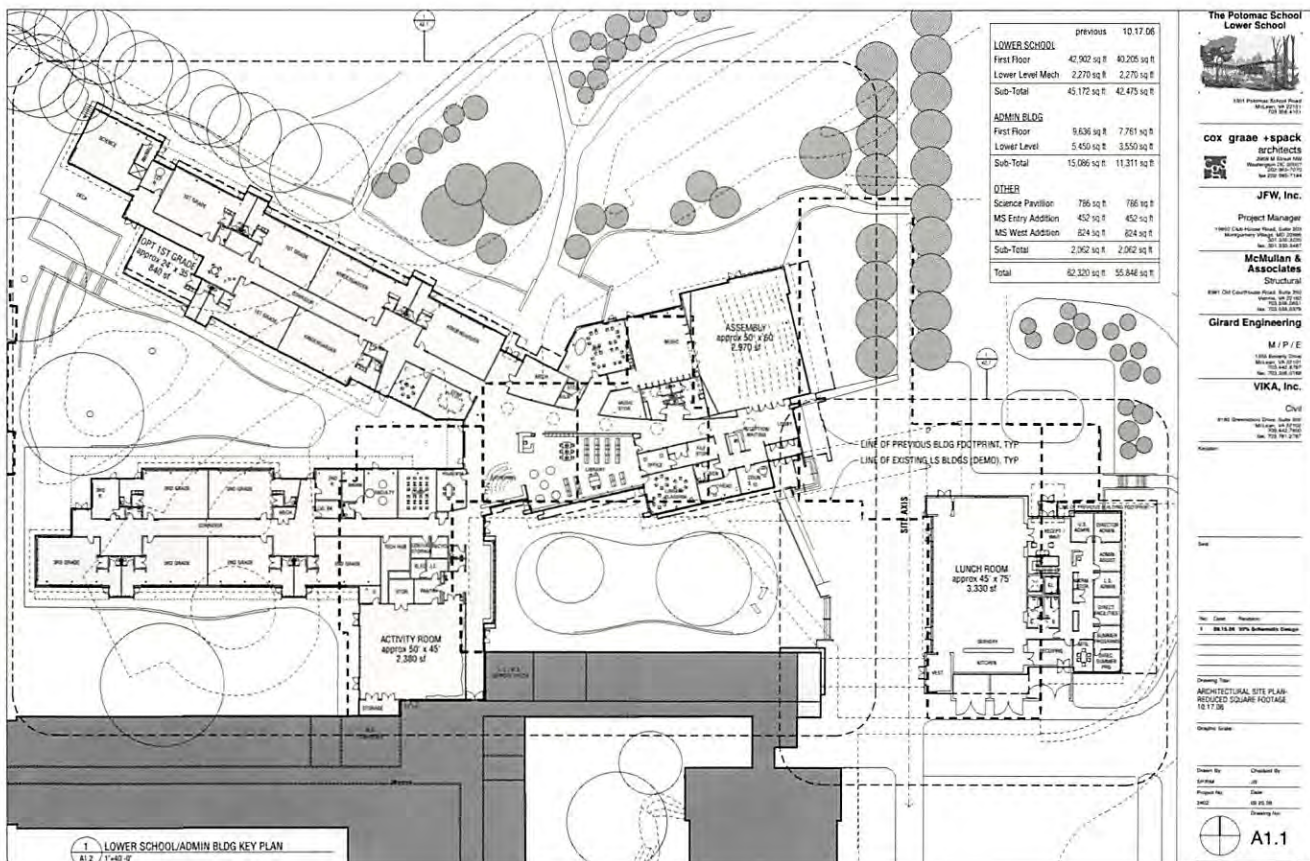

The Lower School curriculum is developed around authentic learning experiences that call upon a multi-sensory approach. The new building will increase opportunities for children to experience learning first hand. Whether it is through gallery displays, an enhanced science lab or a variety of observation points, students will find that learning happens everywhere.

Situated on the property adjacent to the Gum Tree Fields, the highly attractive site for the new Lower School is enveloped by nature. It is isolated from automobile traffic and parking and provides direct access to our nature trails. The classrooms will feature many elements that we have come to know and love. High ceilings, bright natural light from large windows, an intimate gathering area, and doorways leading to our incredible outdoor surroundings will all be transferred to the new design.

The new Lower School will reflect a community where one finds it easy to captivate the imagination of young children

We invite you to contact Christine Owens, Director of Alumni and Development, at 703-749-6330 or cowens@potomacshcool.org to learn more about how you can participate in The Campaign for Potomac’s Future.

Giving Thoughts...

Greetings from the Alumni and Development Office. For all of us at The Potomac School, the beginning of the school year provides many opportunities for new responsibilities and challenges – both in and out of the classroom. We have some exciting news to share with you about two members of the Potomac community who will be taking on some new roles this year:

Jinene Christian was promoted from Director of Annual Giving to Deputy Director of Annual Giving and Alumni Relations. In her new role, Jinene will be working to better integrate these two important programs with the goal of improved communication and service to Potomac's constituents. Jinene joined the Potomac community in September of 2005, and is looking forward to her new responsibilities. "In my first year at the School, I was so impressed by the enthusiasm and generosity of the Potomac community. I am eager to expand my relationship with our alumni and explore the many opportunities for engaging them and our other constituents at this exciting time in Potomac's history."

Anita Homan has been promoted to Director of Alumni Relations. Anita joined the Potomac staff as an Alumni Relations Associate in 2005, following three years of service to the White House. Her extensive experience in Personnel Management, Volunteer and Special Event coordination, and business administration serves her well in her new position. Additionally, as a parent of graduates from The Landon School and National Cathedral School, Anita is familiar with the independent school structure and quickly immersed herself in the Potomac community. "I am very pleased to assume overall responsibilities for Alumni Relations. I look forward to expanding the programs we offer to keep in touch with alumni and developing new events to appeal to a greater number of them."

The door to the Alumni and Development office is always open, and we invite you to stop by our office in the Engelhard Performing Arts Center to say hello. If you are not able to make it to campus, we hope to connect with you at your next reunion, college or university, or Alumni event. We look forward to seeing and serving you and hope you will contact us at 703-749-6356 or 800-P-ALUMNI at any time if we can be of assistance!

2005-06 ANNUAL GIVING

The Annual Fund is the cornerstone of charitable giving and serves as a vital component in maintaining the level of excellence we have come to expect at The Potomac School. 2005-06 ANNUAL GIVING NEWS

Alumni and Senior Phonathon

Thanks to the combined efforts of the Alumni Governing Council and members of the Class of 2006, the annual Alumni and Senior Phonathon was a great success. Senior members of the Community Service Club recruited their classmates to assist with the calling. Following a brief training session and pizza dinner, volunteers took to the phones and began contacting Potomac alumni to support the Annual Fund. The evening was a great success, raising $15,000 and connecting current and past years of Potomac graduates.

Electronic Solicitation a Success

Potomac's first electronic movie Annual Fund solicitation was sent to families this spring. Photographs of Potomac students and faculty past and present were combined with music from the Madrigal Singers to create this moving presentation that captured the spirit of our School. To view the presentation online, please go to http://www.potomacschool.org/support_potomac/flash/potomac.html.

Calling All Volunteers!

At the heart of the Potomac community is a tradition of service. The Annual Fund provides many volunteer opportunities available to the community. Six committees organize mailings, write personal notes, participate in phonathons and serve as ambassadors for the effort. Over 100 volunteers help us reach the School's goal each year. Please call Jinene Christian in the Development Office at (703) 749-6326 if you are interested in volunteering.

Grandparent Annual Giving Committee

In April, Potomac's Grandparent Annual Giving committee convened for its final meeting of the year. Faculty members Mora Solano and Daniel Shannon joined the group to provide an engaging presentation about the many foreign language opportunities at the School. A lively discussion followed the presentation, and was greatly enhanced by several alumni grandparents recalling the foreign language opportunities that existed during their years as Potomac students.

Alumni Parents Return to Campus

On the evening of June 8, alumni parents were welcomed back to campus at a reception held at the home of Head of School and Mrs. Geoff Jones. The patio served as a lovely setting for the first part of the evening, where alumni parents reconnected with current and former faculty members and staff. Following the cocktail and hors d'oeuvre portion of the evening, guests moved indoors for a buffet dinner and informal presentation about the exciting changes happening on campus. Thank you to the Host Committee for helping to make this event a success:

POTOMAC WELCOMES THREE NEW TRUSTEES

Susan Williamson Ross has worked at Clark Construction for nearly 20 years and is Senior Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer responsible for Human Resources, Corporate Communications, Clark Corporate University, Office Services and Corporate Philanthropy. A registered architect, Susan served as Clark's Project manager for several Potomac School projects including the Intermediate School addition in 1994 and the Upper School additions in 1992. Gary C. He is currently Senior Vice President, Partnerships of The Motley Fool where he is responsible for leading the company's strategic partnership and advertising sales efforts. Gary joined the company in 1996 and served as the Chief Financial Officer until assuming his current role in 2001. Gary received an MBA from Stanford in 1993 and a BA in Mathematical Economics from Brown University in 1987. He and his wife, Joanna, have one son, Charlie, whose grandmother Wanda C. A graduate of the University of Michigan, Mr. Eckert lives in Great Falls with his wife, Beth, who is also very involved in Potomac School activities, and their three children, Potomac students Kathryn, Lindsay, and Ryan. The Eckerts chose Potomac based on its reputation for excellence and its balanced approach to academics, athletics, and individual development.

Class Notes

Summer 2006

1932

From the Alumni Office:

Marian Kirk Appel writes, "Enjoying as much as possible life in a retirement home in Haverford, PA. Many interesting people to meet. Correspond with my sister, Deborah Kirk Solbert '35, who's very active, roaming the world. I'm slowed up with a bad back. Enjoyed my Potomac years!" Emily Talbot Sharp writes, "As an artist, I make cut-outs of plywood of people and animals – about 15 signs for Christmas in Middleburg – they hung on lamp posts! Great fun! Also crochet and knit baby blankets for indigent mothers. My daughter, a county health nurse, gets me the yarn in loads of bright colors. I put sunflower seeds (black) on my front porch for squirrels and raccoons who come up about midnight to gobble them up!"

From the Alumni Office:

Muriel Maddox shares news, "My publisher informs me that they are going to bring out my novel Captain from Corfu this summer in a mass paperback edition. It is already in hardcover, so that is good news. My other novels are still in print and there is movie interest in several. I have fond memories of my days at Potomac and my classmates there."

From Katharine Stanley-Brown Abbott:

T.P. Plimpton and his wife, Susie, are celebrating their 55th wedding anniversary this summer! Congratulations to you both. They are justifiably proud of their granddaughter, Ashley, who has been admitted to Bryant University for next fall. Helen Chapin Metz is looking forward to her September time in Maine when all three daughters and their spouses will be with her. Geraldine Warburg Zetzel sent me an e-mail which, unfortunately, was deleted by a computer technician, but is well and busy with her poetry writing in Cambridge, MA. And from Clare Fahnestock Moorhead, "dogged perseverance is paying off finally in the World and U.S. Federations of Friends of Museums - an American language version of their Ethics code is just published and plans with my small Museums Committee for a hospitality center for out-of-town and foreign visitors to New York City are under way." Clare also says she's "looking for volunteer committee and board members, if anyone is interested." Clare keeps up with her daughter, Peggy, whose two children are in college and her son, Jay, and his 12-year old twins. Gordon and I (Katharine) celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary last summer with a gala surprise weekend planned by our four children and followed by a memorable cruise on the Queen Mary II from Southampton, through Gibraltar and around the Mediterranean. Gordon is writing the history of the Congregational Church in Manchester, built in 1802, and an updated history of the Manchester Yacht Club. I'm involved with two books, a Centennial book for the Chilton Club in Boston, and chairing and being editor for a National Society of Colonial Dames in Massachusetts cookbook. Hope to hear from other classmates, but until I do, happy summer and good health to you all.

From the Alumni Office:

Geraldine Warburg Zetzel writes, "I've spent much of this year writing a memoir of my childhood – quite a trip in every sense! It's for my family and descendants – including two newly hatched step-greatgrands. Am involved in trying to develop a 'virtual' retirement community here in Cambridge, modeled on the Boston-based Beacon Hill Village.

From Juliet Gill Davis:

Writing from Charlottesville where we are visiting our youngest daughter, Jenny Williams '81, and her 16 month old son while husband, Kennon, a landscape architect, works on a project at Skipol Airport in Amsterdam. Ally Bean Birney (a faithful correspondent) has just returned from a wonderful trip to England and Ireland sailing on the Queen Mary II. She's looking forward ("she thinks") to her 55th reunion at Vassar. Martha Fulton Beshers writes that she had a "delightful visit with Edith Moffat Spenser in Sedona, Arizona. In April, Edith's cousin, Jane-Kerin Moffat '45, was at Potomac reunion, after which she visited Martha and they talked for 4 straight hours." Weedie Fulton Block '49, Martha's sister, had given her 2 great photos of Potomac faculty, circa 1942. They identified everyone. Frances Sternhagen Carlin as we know is a well-known actress and has just had a terrific holiday in Paris. During the past two years she has starred in Edward Albee's "Seascape", "Steel Magnolias" and "The Foreigner". She acted in 2 episodes of "The Closer" which aired on television in June.

From the Alumni Office:

Cynthia Butterworth Burns writes, "We are spending some time in Phoenix with 2 children & 2 grandsons – hence couldn't attend reunion. In February went to Kazakhstan for younger son's wedding.

From the Alumni Office:

Sandy Robinson Righter wrote, "I was so disappointed not to get to our 50th, but family matters (my brother's 70th) intervened. Let's see, what's new with us: starting with the kids, our daughter, Eliot, mother of three teenagers, graduated in May '05 from Smith College and she and her family are now living in Providence, where she works for the Water Resource Council of Pawtuxet, RI. Our son, Mark, and his family live in NYC. Mark is a high-end cabinet maker and furniture designer and his wife, a potter, is a volunteer coordinator for hospice. Jim and I sold our house at Fisher's Island, NY, a year ago and now have a weekend house much closer to Boston in Mattapoisett, MA. Since retirement (in favor of playing the cello), I have been very involved with the New England Conservatory of Music. Jim is still a practicing architect. We have a little cabin in North Haven, ME, hand-built by us and our kids, and we tend to spend a couple of weeks there each summer. Potomac friends that I see now and then are Anne Livingston Emmet and Didette van Syck, Bunny McPeck '53, Lily Hodges Johnson '50, Lolly MacMurray Aitken '60, Ann Bradley Vehslage '55, Eloise Dark '56, Nina Nitze Moriarty '62, and various young Platts and Peppers. Hope to make it to our next reunion, and send everyone very best wishes."

Lalitte Carusi Smith wrote, "Needless to say, it was a treat to see you in January at Dorcas Hardin's funeral. Weddings and funerals attract friends from all over!!!! Have been working hard at my golf game, in an effort to keep up with my husband, Dick, who has a very low handicap. Four grandsons and then my garden club keep me running. Best to all of you!" Edie Murphy Holbrook wrote, "Am still working with Russia, and still with Mikhail Simonyan, violin virtuoso, now 20 and back living in Moscow, and who just soloed the Kirov US tour under Valery Gergiev to rave reviews. Also heading NYC operations for the Russian National Orchestra, the only independent orchestra in Russia, operating totally independently of the government, a huge challenge which is of special interest to me as culture has become a productive forum in which to nurture any form of private enterprise. It also houses many musicians recruited from the American Russian Young Artists Orchestra which I ran for so many years. Prior to a nationwide tour of 21 cities, we did a huge Gala in NYC last month with Sophia Loren and Martha Stewart at the helm, quite an experience! This means a steady diet of concerts, and tours and Russia travel, but less now. And some time at our upstate home, where John, now retired but volunteering madly, loves to be. Both girls are living on the West Coast, both with two children and both working in their children's schools, and Sara also designing a very interesting outreach program, LA Safari, for one of the LA museums. Cheers!" Sally Hand Herren wrote, "Though we're probably behind everyone else in the class, we have been enjoying our 20-month-old granddaughter, who lives in Westchester County, NY with her parents. Daughter, Lisa '84, still works in international philanthropy for Pfizer, balancing work and family. It's nice having Michael '96 and Allison '97 working close by in Washington. a number of interesting places, the best recently being southern Africa, taking in 4 tented safari camps in Botswana where we saw the animals up close and personal.

Anne Livingston Emmet wrote, "Not too much news. I am painting a lot and exhibiting. I am going to England in May with a Penn. Horticulture group and in September to Bhutan to hike and Laos afterwards. My son, Wing Pepper, has moved to Hong Kong for a few years and is loving it. My daughter, Wendy Pepper '79, continues to design clothes and now LOLLIPOPS.... she is in the papers all the time!!! Another son, Thomas Lloyd '95 just got married to a wonderful girl and they will live here in DC.....nice for me. Four down and one to go!!!"

Tina Knox Radigan tells us, "We have had a very busy year. My husband, Charlie, will retire at the end of August so we have put our house on the market here and are moving to our second home in the Northern Neck of Virginia on September 1st. After living here for 39 years and not being inclined to throw anything away, this is a real challenge! Our new address will be: 124 Laurel Lane, Lancaster, Va. 22503. We have spent so much time traveling back and forth between houses for the last 8 years so it will be nice to settle in there permanently. We spent another month in Florida this winter and had a really fun dinner with Emily McLean and her boyfriend, Joe. Next year we are renting a new place in south Ft. Myers for two months and can take our dog, which is a real plus, so I hope to see more of Emily then. We were in Bermuda in early May for a week and will go back next December early. Our daughter, Kate, and granddaughter, Laura, are now in Chicago. Laura is just ending her first year in high school, which she adapted to beautifully. After almost 3 years of marriage, Kate is seeking an annulment, so she is going through some tough times and unfortunately, is so far away. Our son, Josh, and his wife, Carol, just had their first child and our 2nd grandchild. His name is Knox Charles Radigan and will be called Knox! Keep the news coming! I love to hear from you all!"

From the Alumni Office:

Wendy Ross Eichler sent us this message, "Tom and I are now living in Maine - we'd love to see any members of the class of 1955! I was sorry to miss Eliza's classmate dinner! We still have our DC house, so may return!"

From the Alumni Office:

Charlotte Seymour Lovejoy writes, "I just hate to miss our 50th reunion and look forward very much to hearing all your news. I continue to enjoy - my 3 beautiful daughters (all Potomac) and 4 beautiful granddaughters through many visits a year, - to live in Ft. Myers, FL on my 50 ft. Grand Banks Trawler, - to dive around the world (6 weeks in Indonesia coming up), - to study Spanish, to do Hospice work, and play tournament Scrabble. I am happily retired from Respiratory Therapy now for 13 years. Best to all."

From the Alumni Office:

Becky McCandlish Burckmyer writes, "We have a new grandson, Charles Westwood, born December 11, 2005 (Larry's sixth, my first!) Our daughter, Sarah, and her husband, John, are forty minutes away so we see him often. I continue happily with copyediting and hospice work." Kamila Stapko Allen retired from teaching in June 2005 after 38.6 years of teaching primarily 1st - 3rd grade reading. She writes that she has been married to Stephen Allen for almost thirty three years and has been fighting AML for two years. She says that she is grateful for all that Potomac did for her - especially Jack Langstaff!

Jamie Herter Cherington writes, "I am still working as a consultant to two wonderful foundations that support farmland preservation and agricultural development in Vermont. Even better, I am now the grandmother of twin girls born last May. What a joy being with them as it takes away anxiety about the ills of the world (almost.) Vermont is beginning to 'green up', which means I start raising lambs for lamb chops and heifers for hamburgers. Just call me Farmer Jamie." Eve Auchincloss Lilley writes, "I am still in the field of Learning Disabilities and am quite busy doing a lot of diagnostic testing. Actually am doing some testing for Potomac's Middle School. Still loving my classical ballet classes - knock on wood, no aches/pains yet! My husband, Bill, is busy with his company (digital mapping, etc.) Have eight grandbabies now ranging from 1 to 16 years of age. Am involved in school volunteer organizations - amongst them the Washington Ballet, another small dance company, the Lab School of Washington, a classical ballet studio, and two other organizations - so life is busy. And, we are just about to own two female puppies to add to the two elderly girls we already have. All is well with the Lillies!" Constance Casey shares, "I retired from being a gardener for the NY City Parks Department in November 2005 - after getting the last of 7,200 tulip bulbs in the ground. Now I am concentrating on word-work - doing a monthly column for slate.com on gardening. Also tending 100 acres of wild woods and meadows in Columbia County - the New York State side of the Berkshires (inspired by Mr. Morton.)"

From Deborah Johansen Harris:

Liz Murray Platts reports that she attended "the very moving tribute to Mr. Langstaff at School last spring. The combination of speakers from his family, the Revels and Potomac along with recordings of his voice and photographs brought back many memories of his profound impact on people. We ended with the singing of Leave Her, Johnny, Leave Her and Wild Mountain Thyme. Since our classmate Peak Mason Hogen has moved to Washington, DC from Connecticut, we have been trying to gather area classmates, including Elizabeth Davison and Jacqui Carnicero Duchange, who met with Peak and me for coffee. My big news is that I am retiring from teaching to spend more time traveling, especially to Berkeley and London where my sons will

The big challenge will be the classes are in Italian, so I'm trying to refresh my memory. It will include hands-on work and observation, which transcends language gaps, but still presents a challenge. I see Deena Breed occasionally when she comes up from Florida to visit family in Annapolis, most recently before Thanksgiving. We went to an exhibit of illustrated manuscripts at the National Gallery together. I just heard yesterday that Julie Pell, who was in my sister's class ('68) and on Potomac School Bus 2, died of lung cancer. Too young. I have three grown kids and two fab granddaughters, who live too far away in Singapore with my oldest daughter, Belle Waring. In order to see them I've 'had' to take four or five trips to Asia, and that's been thrilling and exotic. My son, Ben Waring, is working at a private space exploration company, called Bigelow, in their General Counsel's office in Chevy Chase, MD and is fulfilling his life's dream to work on space matters. My youngest daughter, Mia Kirby-Smith, studies jewelry fabrication and design and works at a jewelry store in Bethesda, MD. She may share an apartment with me in Florence and get some specialized training there. I'm studying and working and drawing and etching and gardening and traveling, and life is pretty fantastic." Deena Breed said over the phone that she and husband Howard were extremely lucky to have weathered last fall's hurricanes fairly well. "We had three trees fall near the house, but we remained unscathed," she reported. Their bike business is "booming," and they still lead what sounds like an idyllic life: The arts and crafts house that they bought and renovated a few years ago sits right on a large pond, and the bike shop where they work is within walking distance. "When we're not sitting on the dock enjoying the view, we're out sailing," said Deena. Last August, yours truly and my husband Ted decided to "downsize" and moved to the little town of Holden just outside of Worcester and about an hour west of Boston. Our 1950s, International Style house reminds me of the house my dad designed for us in Connecticut, and brings back nice memories. Ted and I have enjoyed working in the garden and generally getting settled—it seemed to take forever—as well as get used to parenting two supercharged Springer Spaniel puppies. I hope to see Snowdie and Deena in a couple of weeks when I go down to DC, as well as hook up with Liz Platts. I'm still enjoying my work as Communications Manager at the architectural firm of Shepley Bulfinch Richardson and Abbott. Classmate Susan Dreier and I went to Mr. Langstaff's incredibly moving memorial service held last winter at Harvard University Memorial Chapel. At the reception, we all joined Morris dancers from the Revels production company in honor of Jack's inimitable spirit. Truly, he was and is The Lord of the Dance that will never, never die. How much he gave us at Potomac and thereafter for those of us lucky enough to attend the Revels performances in Cambridge, New York and elsewhere! Hope everyone has a great rest of the year!

Natalie Shiras writes, "I'm loving the Berkshires of western Massachusetts where I am pastor of Church on the Hill (United Church of Christ) in Lenox. We just celebrated the 200th anniversary of this historic meeting house. Sunday responsibilities prevented me from attending the 40th anniversary dinner at Potomac – especially sorry to miss the Jack Langstaff tribute." Georgia Warnke is a Professor of Philosophy and Associate Dean of the College of Humanities Arts and Sciences at the University of California, Riverside. Her son, Nathan, is a 2005 graduate of Vassar College and her son, Alex, is a sophomore at Columbia University.

From the Alumni Office:

Laura Wainwright writes, "Remembering Julie Pell – Some of my best memories took place at the Pell house. Bus 2 would drop me at my house and I'd race it to Julie's. There we'd have Charlotte's warm chocolate chip cookies, search for box turtles in the yard, dare to run past the full sets of armored men on the stairs to play in her room. I loved her spirit, her temper, her wacky humor. I'm so sad to learn of her death."

Renn Richman shares, "Well, I have some big news. Sam is getting married in June. I have moved back to Myrtle Beach, SC where I have many old friends. Gordon and I have bought a new home – and we are keeping my house in Maine for vacation time and to spend time with my daughter and 5 year old grandson." Jan Nichols writes, "I am excited to report I've started a new business this year which has fulfilled a life-long dream. I've opened a music studio for instruction and recording www.broadrunmusicstudio.com One of my guitar instructors is Brock Holmes '67, brother of my classmate Katie Holmes Caldwell. We're up to 30 students & counting!"

From Jane McAllister:

Congratulations to John C. McLaughlin, who writes, "I live in San Francisco now where I have just gotten licensed as a psychologist. Twelve years ago I left Washington, D.C., where I had been driving a Diamond cab for seventeen years. Currently, I'm teaching and trying to start a private practice with hopes of applying my interests in Lacanian psychoanalysis to adults and children and infant-parent dyads. This June my wife and I expect a daughter, our first child." Linn Cary Mehta writes, "Ellen Schlefer, Sarah Meeker Jensen, and I spent a weekend in New York together last December—just before Christmas, and in honor of our fiftieth birthdays—spontaneously and without fanfare but with much delight in catching up with one another after forty years. Pam Ridder joined us on Saturday. Ellie and Sarah had called me one day to say they were coming to visit me in New York (my home being the center point for their travels from Portsmouth, NH, and Santa Monica, CA), and we knew that Pam was nearby. The gathering was remarkable, given that I was only at Potomac for three years (grades 1-3, once acting the part of the wall in Pyramis and Thisbe!), but my friendships there were the most formative of my childhood. For years afterward, Sarah would come up to New York for the Cary family annual circus party, and I reconnected with Ellie when she turned up in New York for several years after medical school. Yes, we have now all had children and husbands, have worked hard, and found things we are passionate about, but we are indeed the same people who formed close friendships so many years ago in the halls of The Potomac School. One beacon of light drawing us back over the years has been the music of Jack Langstaff, and Ellie and I met again at the funeral service for him in March at Harvard's Memorial Church. The music was not the same without his voice. But the reach of his music continues. Recently, Anne McClelland Sullivan '71 and I met and immediately realized that we had been a year apart at Potomac, had shared that same music, and are playing it still for one another and for our children. Otherwise, my children, Sage, 21, and Natasha, 19, are both at university; my husband is working on another book; I am teaching English and Comparative Literature part-time at Barnard College; my sister, Katrina Cary '73 has a lovely little son, Theo, now almost four, and lives across the park from us in New York. Warm greetings to our classmates." Ellen Schlefer also wrote about getting together with Sarah Meeker Jensen, Pam Ridder, and Linn Cary Mehta, and seeing Linn at John Langstaff's memorial service in New York, which she described as "characteristically amazing: both sad and joyful, with lots of singing and a wonderful memorial given by his son-in-law, who is a minister." Ellen added that "Michael, Lucy, 14, and Molly, 12, and I are still in New Hampshire, and all doing well. Perhaps one of these days, I will get to another reunion." Sarah Meeker Jensen writes, "All is well here in LA. I have located Tiggy Lowry. My oldest daughter is in college and the second one is applying next year. My son is in sixth grade. I am enjoying running my now four-year-old company, which builds hospitals." Maggie White Momber is living just outside Munich, Germany, and would love to see any Potomac friends coming through for Oktoberfest or any other reason. "We are all fine here. The kids are happy at school, which is a lot like Potomac, except that it is an international school. We have a great science teacher here who was at Potomac last year, Sara Blanchard. I wish I could have been at Potomac on Saturday (April 29, 2006 for John Langstaff's memorial. I really would have loved to participate." Bobby Rock writes: "My wife, Kerry Boyle, has left Infinity and is enjoying some time off after executive-producing Capote. I'm still at American Zoetrope, working on the filming of the documentary On the Road (interviews with Gore Vidal, documentary filmmaker D. A. Pennebaker, novelist Robert Stone, and more) and the development of the screenplay for the feature film On the fanatic. Georgia is a hip-hop dancer, and if you go to any movies by Mandate Films, you'll see her as the star (drummer girl) of the logo-trailer as the movie begins. Long story, but basically she caught the eye of the people who were casting for that last year. I stay in touch with fellow Potomac grads such as Jane McAllister, Bill McElwain, Jeremy Gordon '68, Dana Strong van Loon, and Claudia Krieger-Myers '72. Dear friends all. Such great relationships we forged so long ago in McLean." And speaking of Bill McElwain: Bill and his wife, Susie Crudgington, again graciously hosted the Class of 1970 reunion dinner. Garrett Jewett came from New York City, also to visit his parents, but we were otherwise a fairly local bunch: Duncan Krieger and his wife, Marsha, shared pictures of their young son, Gabriel, 3 years old. Matthew Kimball showed just-taken pre-prom photos of his daughter, Margaret, and we were all sorry that Matt's wife, Lydia, stayed home in Baltimore to help manage that event. John Dillon and his spouse had hoped to make it but couldn't at the last minute. Melinda Titus called from Portland, Maine, to say hello to whomever was gathered. She had lots of great news about her daughters, Alex, 25, Samantha, 23, and Max, 20, and is enjoying apartment life now that the girls have all left home. Philip Frisbee sends warm regards to classmates and proudly announces that his son, August, will turn 5 in August! Mary D. Macy Civitarese writes: "Not much new here but I did start a new job in January that I love, working part time as an administrative assistant in a 26-unit apartment complex designed for elderly and younger people with disabilities. It's funded by HUD and rural development. There are a lot of great characters and the island businesses do a lot to support the people there. Other than that, I'm busy trying to get my garden planted in between driving teenage girls everywhere." Krikky Rose Jaffe writes, "Sorry I couldn't make the reunion. Nothing too dramatic going on. I am still teaching English (10th and 12th grades this year) and especially enjoying my senior elective on Gender. My son is teaching Spanish—funny how teaching seems to run in families—and one daughter is trying to navigate the corporate world in New York City while the other one is thinking about college. I am glad you [Jane] liked my mother's book A Difficult Girl. I had heard most of the stories at my mother's knee, so to speak." From Jane McAllister, "I'm enjoying the Potomac School community through my son, Max '15, who's moving up to Middle School next year, and am always trying to find time for practicing the art of calligraphy, taking classes when I can. I'm still doing freelance editing of books and have lined up some large museum projects. ... If you are looking for summer reading and haven't yet read Imogen Rose's beautifully written memoirs titled A Difficult Girl (available through Potomac's alumni office), make this book next on your list. Your appreciation for Mrs. Rose will only deepen as you come to know her better in her own thoughtful prose. It's a great page turner, much of it taking place at St. Swithun's School, which she entered in 1936. You wish for a second volume to take you through her studies at Cambridge University and her perspective as a faculty member at Potomac (1956 through 1993)." I've enjoyed the e-mails and phone conversations with classmates as I prepared the class news. Thanks, everyone. Finally, I'd like to send condolences to Lindsay Potts, whose father, Ramsay Potts, died May 28th in Florida. Lindsay had sent in this upbeat news before her father became ill: Lindsay Potts writes, "Sing doubly loud for me at Jack's service, and I hope it's beautiful for schmoozing under the stars at Bill (McElwain)'s reunion dinner. We're all well. Doing a bit of college tripping with Judson, who really does want to be a cop. Sky's loving college and building good relationships with her profs! We've got a new kid in the house—just providing a safe place for her to focus on finishing up high school this year and get ready for college in the fall. I've traveled with Dave recently to Colorado and Hawaii—maybe I will retire and just become his valet!"

From Ros Parker Smythe:

Starting out west, Lewis Butler sends the news that his daughter, Elena, will be entering Harvard next year. Looks like the Butler family will be coming east for parents weekend at least. Son Tobias is in the 9th grade so they will have a reprieve from the dreaded college search for a few years. Lewis and his wife continue to practice mostly residential architecture in the San Francisco area with their firm, Butler Armsden Architects, with a crew of about ten employees. Richard Dalley reported in from Lambertville, NJ. During the week his work revolves around the production of surgical drapes at Pacon Manufacturing and his wife Alison is involved with real estate. On the weekends they are busy with "the never ending reclamation of our very old farmhouse...along with the requisite end of day libations." Their household is rounded out with the addition of a Labrador. Richard reports that "the whole Dalley family has now left the DC area. Older sister Laura '67 is in London, older brother Kip '70 is in New Hampshire, younger sister Sarah '79 is here in Joisey and my parents made the move to Princeton about a year ago. It'd be great to catch up with the class of '72, maybe a big push for the next big reunion?" It was a pleasure to receive the following from Bob Shorb. "Liz and I are still hunkered down in Chevy Chase, keeping up with the comings and goings of Potomac through my niece, Molly Jaffe '08, and nephew, Chris Jaffe '11. My sister, Kim '71, is teaching at Sidwell Friends and my brother, Chris '74, continues to grow his jewelry importing business. We are facing the daunting task of three children at three different schools next year (St. Albans, St. Patricks, and Beauvoir) but the kids seem to be content with the situation so who am I to complain. My bi-weekly travel to the west coast has finally started to ease off after 3 _ years, but true to the Whack-a-mole principal, my incessant travels to Newport Beach have been replaced by less frequent trips to many other cities too numerous to mention." As for me (Ros), we continue to live in Medfield, MA. Our son, Jed, is heading to Davidson College next year in NC. Adelaide will be a junior at a day school and Louisa will be a Freshman at Concord Academy. Dan continues his commute in to Boston and I seem to keep more than busy enough at home. Recently my older brother, Rob '71, celebrated his 50th birthday. Family members David '67, Tom '68, and Nat '70 were also in attendance. Additionally, Tom Chalmers '71 was at the festivities. Tom, wife Joan, and their two children live nearby in Weston, MA where Tom has his own architectural firm. Following on the heels of Rob's party was a 50th birthday party for Jane Soyster Gould '71 given by her husband, John. Jane has a parish in Lynn, MA and John continues to teach English at Phillips Andover. I close my notes as always by thanking all who wrote in. It is a pleasure to hear from you and I look forward to the next round of class notes.

From Ann Brown:

Thank you to all who responded to my first entreaty for news, particularly Blake Gardner Cook. My new favorite friend responded within hours, citing her sincere concern for my image as a competent class secretary. Now there's loyalty! Blake writes, "I went back to school this year, and am studying to be an occupational therapist. It is much harder than I thought, but very interesting." She lives in New Vernon, NJ, with her husband, Doug. They have one daughter at Colorado College, and another daughter and son in high school. Blake stays in touch with Errol Train, who lives nearby with her husband and three kids, Susan Parrott Crary, who lives in NYC with her husband and three kids, as well as Tzu-Lin Li Toner '75, Michael Richardson '75 and Edward Jewett '75. Jonathan Willens writes, "I have been in NY for twenty years since completing law school and convincing a lovely English girl to move to the big city with me. We have two sons, one house in Park Slope, and a tenant in our garden apartment who closely resembles my sister, Peggy Willens '76. Joseph is 15, much taller, better looking and more talented than I. He is part of a world-famous juggling troupe called the Three of Clubs. He plays tennis and has many friends and gets good grades. Oliver is 11, plays baseball like Marty Rengers, enjoys sixth grade except for the classes and homework, and also has many friends." Jonathan's wife, Julia, owns a branding and design firm, and he has a small law firm “which only represents blameless, talented individuals oppressed by corporate malfeasors.” He frequently runs into Stephen and Ben Warnke. Also now self-employed is Carroll Carter. He writes, “The Carter-7 are doing well. I recently started Carter Burke Equity Research with my wife, Lia’s, encouraging words, ‘Honey, if you’re really going to do this, now is the time while our son, Sam, is 2 years away from college!’ Otherwise, I’m coaching soccer and playing the drums (now set-up in our living room) to accompany son, Luke, age 13, as he plays jazz piano.” Presumably just to make the rest of us feel bad, Richard Bray writes, “It’s hard to believe I can retire in less than six years! Everything is great with us. We have an Alaska cruise planned for September.” Garrett Randolph is restoring one early 1800’s farmhouse, while living in yet another. He enjoys visits from Nicholas Nassikas ’05, who attends Colby College nearby. While on vacation in New Mexico last winter, Garrett visited Somers Randolph ’71, caught the opening of a show of paintings by Adam Randolph ’76 in Santa Fe, and attended an elegant dinner hosted by Siri

Hari Kaur Angleton-Khalsa. Siri Hari reports that Garrett “still looks like a skier rising from the ocean.” She also writes that Robert DeNiro is making a film, The Good Shepherd, which is loosely based on her father. Her parents will be played by Matt Damon and Angelina Jolie. That makes sense. But to stay authentic, I hope they cast Katie Couric to play little Lucy. Among other interests, such as writing a book about the Ten Sikh Gurus, Siri Hari has been working on the design of formal gardens and pools. London Landscapes, the landscape architecture practice of Barbara Parrot Katz, continues to flourish around DC. Her son, Nicholas, just graduated from Denison, and is off to work in Denver. Her daughter, Olivia, will go to the University of Colorado this fall. Wendy Israel Ogilvie, who works at an environmental consulting firm in Grand Rapids, MI, has a son graduating from Boulder this spring. Happily she gets to see quite a bit of her daughter, who is a junior at Michigan State University. Jane Day Rich writes, “Kevin, Isabelle, age 4, and I have settled well into life in the Chicago suburbs. We are one mile from Lake Michigan, a mile from the towns of Highland Park and Ravinia, and, much more fun, about half a mile from Sally and Tim Higginson. They have been wonderfully warm and welcoming!” Jen Just writes, “I am working part time at Whitlock’s Book Barn in Bethany, CT, putting books in order in a way that I only hope to do at home. An essay I wrote for the New York Times Modern Love column will be included in an anthology of such essays in 2007. Hope everyone is well, and see you at the next reunion!” Speaking of reunions, Hilary Stewart left me a message in April saying that she had just sold her charming house, where we had our 25th, and is moving to Asheville, NC. Sarah Holmes and I attended a beautiful show of Hilary’s pastel drawings last year. Sarah writes, “I’ve now completed my first year in Strategic Planning at General Dynamics. It’s been fascinating to leave government and enter the private sector. Life in the city continues to entertain: I saw Grace Guggenheim on a panel at the National Archives, after a Guggenheim Productions show about Lady Bird Johnson. It’s fun to have sightings of other folk, including Andy Hyde, Barbara Parrot Katz, Ann Brown, Dorsey Davidge ’73, and Leslie Hyde ’71.” Polly Pittman reports that she and her husband, Tom, are in the final stages of building a house on her family’s farm. She writes, “While life as a Potomac parent has been wonderful, my youngest of three will graduate in 2008, at which point we have every intention of becoming country bumpkins! The older girls have been thriving in college. Mica was in Paris this semester, and Amanda is off to Egypt and Bangladesh this summer. Thank goodness for their Argentine passports!” Huge congratulations to Oliver Platt, who is starring in the Broadway production of Shining City. He has been nominated for a 2006 Tony Award for Best Actor. Nina Chapin de Rochefort, reports that she, her husband, Pierre, and children, Nicolas and Leila, spent a “blissful” Easter vacation in Kenya. Recently Nina’s work in coordinating the 183 Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies has focused on “tsunami relief and recovery operations in Sri Lanka and Indonesia, Katrina (yes, lots of international interest and support!), and the Pakistan earthquake. It’s quite the challenge, but it is certainly interesting. It was great to see everyone at our reunion. One of the disadvantages of living overseas, as I would love to keep in touch more.” Marla Freeman is “busy, busy, busy” working as an anesthesiologist at a hospital near State College, PA and raising her daughter, Noelle. They both enjoy lots of skiing, horseback riding and coming back home for Redskins games. John and Georgia Chafee Nassikas have three children, Tribbie, Alexander and Cyrus, who are still at Potomac. John reports that soon he will finish his six-year term on Potomac’s Board of Trustees. He writes, “I have enjoyed every day and meeting. As a student, I never thought someday I would be spending

From Julie Just:

First and foremost, thanks to Jonathan Mudd for hosting our fantastic 30th reunion party, which must have been a great success, since it lasted until 2 AM . . . those of us who were there don't remember all of it, but Molly Shipp Payne, Scott O'Gorman, Mads Carter and Whitney Tymas were seen pitching in on clean-up detail (thanks also, by the way, to Molly and Marshall Tucker for helping organize, and to anyone else I'm mistakenly leaving out). Aside from playing great music and not kicking us out after midnight, Jonathan had done a tremendous amount of yard work, which was duly admired by all. I particularly enjoyed catching up with Mads, Jonathan, Whit, Molly, and Marque Chambliss and his wife, and was sorry not to get a chance to talk more to everyone. Here are a few updates on our classmates -- I think most people were too tired out from the party or from the effort expended staying away from the party to write in with news, but I hope Whitney Tymas won't mind if I report that she recently left her job as assistant D.A. for Richmond, VA, to start her own law firm with a partner, which is even more impressive. So far they have all the work they can handle, so must be going well. For myself, I also recently changed jobs and accidentally fell into something I really love -- I'm now the Children's Books Editor of the New York Times Book Review, which has the added benefit of being part-time, but is also really fun. I'm also supposed to be finishing a guidebook to classic family films (from the silent film era to now - should be easy, right?), and that is proceeding pretty slowly. More on that front in 2007. Jonathan Mudd lives in DC with his two daughters, ages 10 and 12...works for finance /investing company The Motley Fool (where he endures regular meetings with Gary Hill '79, brother of Stephen Hill ...writes, performs and produces rock music played on REAL instruments (purchase CDs and check out ZIT photos at www.muddmusic.com)...and categorically denies the rumor that Marshall Tucker has been living in his basement since the 30th Class Reunion (Marshall: please stop drinking directly from the milk carton). Scott O'Gorman lives in Arlington with his wife, Melissa, and their 3 children: Jack, 11, 5th grader at Potomac, Kelly, 9, will be entering the 4th grade at Potomac this fall, and Georgia, 6, a kindergartener at Arlington Traditional School. Scott keeps in regular contact with Molly, Francis Caskin and Anthony Poole, but hopes to keep in contact with more classmates as a result of reuniting at the 30th reunion. Brad MacKenzie writes, "I'm sorry I missed the 30th reunion, but in the weeks leading up to that event, I re-connected with its host, Jon Mudd. Jon sent me his CD, a fine collection of well-produced rock compositions with a sometimes reflective cast to the lyrics, which I then played on my radio show. My show usually highlights bluegrass and Americana music, but, as one of the only non-commercial, non-underwritten radio stations in the country, KOTO-FM allows its DJs to play anything they want -- and we do! If you'd like to listen in, the Boxcar MacKenzie radio show streams from www.koto.org, in Telluride, Colorado, on Tuesday mornings from 9-11 a.m. Mountain time."

I have lived in Oakton, VA (since 2003) with my wife, Elizabeth Burk, and 9-month-old daughter, Zoe Elizabeth (born 7/1/05); married since July, 1996. I have worked at The Nature Conservancy in Arlington, VA for more than two years and am director of Member Management and Vendor Operations. Previously, I was in the telecom industry, primarily with MCI, for 10 years, and also spent three years as a management consultant helping companies develop customer-focused business strategies and technology evaluations. I play virtually no tennis anymore. I have a friend at the office who is a lot younger, who I occasionally play with, or better yet, who runs me around the court. Alice, 6. I’m a full-time substitute teacher at Rappahannock Elementary with a specialty in 4th and 5th grade Special Education. I’m in the process of becoming a licensed teacher. I tried teaching high school but they scare me to death. I also serve on the Board of the Rappahannock County Conservation Alliance. We all foxhunt with the Thornton Hill Hounds, Sperryville, VA. We have 9 horses, 8 dogs, chickens and ducks. We also have a small Connemara Pony breeding operation. I have a 2-year-old, a yearling and an Irish mare. I hope classmates and alumni will join me in seeing the Al Gore climate change documentary, “An Inconvenient Truth.” which was directed and produced by our own Davis Guggenheim! I also hope the school will invite Davis to come to campus to speak about making the movie. I covered climate change issues when I worked in EPA’s congressional office, and worked with Senator Gore and his staff as well, and can attest that Davis did a great job with this film. I hope this is just the beginning of his career in documentaries!

From Dewie Oppenheimer:

Our 25th Reunion was this year (!) and Romey Pittman graciously hosted (yet again.) While many of us (including myself) were unable to attend, I hear the Reunion was a great success. Elinor Tucker is in Tampa Bay, FL and would love to have visitors. You can reach her at melloello@gmail.com or 813-286-1326. Edie Demas is working in New York at the New Victory Theater - www.newvictory.org - a non-profit theater on 42nd street, dedicated to international performing arts for kids and families. She completed her PhD in Educational Theatre in December and will graduate from NYU in May. She is also working with the NY Dept of Ed to try to ensure that quality arts education is available to all the kids in the city.

Scarlett Bell Talamantes writes "...my past life in New York in Corporate Finance is now a distant memory, renounced in favor of more creative pursuits that are a better fit for me..." She is married with two boys, 10 and 7, and they live in Sacramento and love the ready access to biking, hiking, and skiing trails. Nevah Thompson Stevenson retired from professional life 4 years ago to be with her three boys, 13, 9 and 4. She lives in the Salt Lake City area and would like to say to her ex-classmates "...I marvel at the caliber of intellect, curiosity and sense of purpose that rippled through our classrooms." She would love to hear from you all at nevahsteven@aol.com.

I (Dewie Oppenheimer) am still here in the DC area; I bought a house in Arlington about a year ago and for those of you who haven't been back in awhile, you wouldn't recognize the area...nor Potomac for that matter! I have recently begun a new job and career – I am a staff accountant for a small company which does video production and freelance & fulltime placement, in addition to payroll services. I work in the accounting department working on A/R and A/P issues. I started about two months ago, so don't ask me too much more!

From Emily Eden Trotman:

We have quite a few moves to report:

Lisa Herren Foster recently relocated from NYC to Mt. Vernon, NY with her husband Charles and 20 month-old Ellie. They love it. She sees Megan Bartsch, and her son Finn (14 months), who live in NYC where Megan is a psychiatrist. Joanie Wolfington Berkery will soon be close by to Lisa. She writes, "We are leaving NYC and moving to Bronxville, NY. We will miss our life here but are excited about a house. Allie will be going to 1st grade (she is almost 6), Andrew to PreK (he is 31/2) and our baby Catherine will be 1 in a few weeks." On a personal note, my husband Phil and daughter Allie ,4, and I have moved to Old Greenwich, CT, which we are enjoying very much. Cathy Curran Butcher writes, "My husband accepted a job in Chicago, so I've just quit my job to stay home with our kids (John is 7 and Andrew is 5), and we're moving next month. We bought a 100 year old house north of the city and will be spending a lot of time fixing it up!! I don't know a soul in Chicago, so I'd love to catch up with any Potomac classmates who might be there." You could try Matt McGuire, who writes, "If anyone is ever in Chicago and wants to connect I am here and reachable at: mmcguire@arielcapital.com or at (312) 617-9691. Hope all are well." Trevor Corson writes, "I now live in Washington, D.C.. James Quigley arranged for me to give a lecture on The Secret Life of Lobsters at the Metropolitan Club in April; a number of Potomac Schoolers came, including Mary Day Fitzgibbon. Kudos to the crustaceans for reuniting us." Nice networking, James. Anyone else have a venue for Trevor? Mary Day Fitzgibbon elaborates on that night, "One of the highlights of a recent trip to D.C. was going with James Quigley and his wife Kristen to eat lobster and hear Trevor Corson speak about his book. Trevor was incredibly well spoken and amusing, I thoroughly enjoyed his lecture not to mention the raised eyebrows of some of the older Met Club members as he discussed intimacies between lobsters! Connie Pendelton

'82 was there as well, and it was fun to see her and catch up. Eliza , 4, and I are traveling to Spain in June, then back to Loudonville, NY for a fun summer of chasing three 'spirited' children Eliza, Kate, 3, and John, 18 mos. around the pool! There will be no rest for the weary!" Another creative classmate to keep an eye on besides Trevor is Katryna Nields, who writes, "I am cutting back on touring right now because Nerissa Nields '82 just had a baby- two weeks ago! I am running a family folk chorus in Western MA and I am drawing heavily from the wonderful music I was taught at Potomac and from Jack Langstaff's work. Nerissa and I are about to release a family CD. We recorded some of it with my father, John Nields, and some of it on our own. Again we drew some inspiration from Potomac's wonderful music program-thank you Jill Bixler." Jonathan Roosevelt echoes his love for the Potomac music, "Jack Langstaff's recent passing has brought back a rush of fond Potomac memories. I hope my wife Meagan and I will make it to our next reunion so she can feel what a wonderful place Potomac is." That brings us into our next category, weddings! Jonathan continues, "I got married to (a very patient) Meagan Gallagher in October 2003. We're living in Brookline, MA with our cats, Alice and Gallagher (we're dipping our toe in the water.) Meagan works for Planned Parenthood and I recently opened a fitness and nutrition center called My Healthy Fit." Robert Coleman also reports, "I am still here in Portland. Married last October 22, to Celena Turnsen, baby due on July 25, 2007. Otherwise, still practicing law. All my best to everyone." Ali Shapiro writes, "I'm getting married in June and we're in the process of building a new house for us to live in (happily ever after, of course). Look for us in Cabin

John, MD starting sometime this fall. My company, Building Innovations, continues to keep me busy with major home renovation work." And Michael Danzansky also was recently engaged, "I moved to San Francisco in September to get a masters degree in Philosophy at the California Institute for Integral Studies. SF is fantastic. I kept my 'day job' as an employee benefits consultant, so have been flying back to DC pretty regularly for work and to see my fiancé Cate (just got engaged in April). We will be traveling to Africa for 6 weeks this summer to both volunteer and experience a bit of the continent. I joined the improv comedy group The Beatnik Syndicate out in SF, where we are doing some fun things with improv poetry and music." Also in SF is Charles Saltzman, "My wife, Hilary, and I are still in San Francisco and enjoying seeing our son, Phin, grow. He's 22 months now. I am now working at HP which acquired my company (Snapfish) last year." Checking in from Colorado, Talbot Reyner Taylor writes, "My husband, Brad and I live in Colorado Springs, CO. Our son, Will, just turned 3... and we have a 2nd on the way. Brad has an internet company called TechForLess and I work part time from home as an Architect. I have one employee (ha!) and we work on residential projects- custom homes, remodels and additions." Also from CO writes Eric Strauch, "Finally, finally, finally...a Potomac classmate actually came to visit Vail, remembered that I live in Vail, and called. Couldn't have been easier to catch up with an old friend. Dropped my boys off at ski school for the day and spent the day on the slopes with Antonio Cecchi. If anyone is skiing anywhere and sees a guy in a onepiece on a monoboard, look closely... it's probably Antonio. Mama bear is el pregnio with bambino #3, due to arrive in November. Still working as a PA in busy spine surgery practice at the Steadman-Hawkins Clinic in Vail. To my dismay, Tucker, 5, and Henry, 4, discovered the terrain park this past winter — also known as 'trauma garden.'" Sarah Webber Bischoff writes, "I am enjoying life in Cape Elizabeth, Maine with husband, David, and two boys, Charlie, who is three, and Sam, who is one. I am also still doing a little real estate investing with my brother, John Webber '82. We are fixing and flipping single family houses in the area." Jennie Maddox Sergent writes, "We're in Arlington, I'm still editing magazines for HGTV and Food Network. Chal was born on Nov. 18, 2004, 7 days before his brother's Nov. 25 birthday, which fell on Thanksgiving that year, which meant all our family descended, and with a 7-day-old to care for and entertaining to do, I had a mini nervous breakdown!! But all's well now -- boys and husband are great. Our family is officially full, and we're done having babies!!" Chris Floyd writes in, "My wife and I are both doing well. My business, Capital Restaurant Resources (www.caprr.com) has taken off. We have two beautiful daughters, Emma and Chloe. And we are very happy with our new home on Capitol Hill - 604 South Carolina SE. Hope you are well. Give my best to everyone." I, Emily Eden Trotman, have been facilitating parent discussion sessions designed to help moms and dads avoid afore mentioned nervous breakdowns by sharing their struggles (and solutions) with one another. (Not to single you out Jennie, we have all been there too!) Thanks to everyone who wrote in this year. And if you are reading this, consider writing to me next year at eetrotman@yahoo.com.

From Holly Green Gordon:

Thanks to everyone who heeded the call for news. As a result, I have a bunch to report! Zania Pearson writes, "I'm still in DC working as a web editor with the State Department. I bought a house three years ago and my, gulp, daughter is in boarding school at Mercersburg Academy. Did I mention she just turned 16?! She's great and an honor roll student. So while I haven't talked to anyone as of late, I hope everyone is really enjoying life and their families are healthy and safe." Ann Renzy

Maclean updates, "I am on fellowship at the University of St Andrews in Scotland. Husband, Nick, and new baby, Benjamin ("Benji"), are here with me. Unfortunately, we will have to go back to reality this fall when I go back to teaching high school Latin in Loudoun county. I was very sorry not to have been home for the reunion!" Jamie Mayberry's turn, "I am still in Chicago; a great place to live despite the lousy weather. My company is attempting to revolutionize dry-cleaning technology. Yes, dry-cleaning technology. More on that later. I am very pleased to be returning (in my oh so copious free time) to acting in local theatre, and doing some commercial voice-over work. My wife Amy's vintage clothing store, Viva Vintage, has gotten some great local press lately; Viva clothes can regularly be seen on That 70s Show." Jamie Kehler (Jamie K. for those who remember the shorthand), lives in Silver Spring with his wife Yanna, a TV producer. Jamie is using his training as a veterinarian to conduct stem cell research on cats. (I hope I didn't get that too wrong, Jamie!) All the way from the West Coast, Ted Shapiro gives us a reason to go to the movies. "I am living in Los Angeles with my wife, Joanna, and our fourteen month-old daughter, Kate. We moved from New York a year and a half ago, and are thoroughly enjoying it out here. I just completed writing the music for the film The Devil Wears Prada, which comes out June 30th. It's a really good movie." Abner Finley is living in Minneapolis, MN and is in consulting work in special events, travel and investing. Also, he is helping people, who are adult fans of LEGO, on displaying small or big models at public shows around the country. Kitt Diebold had an exciting year. "I married Megan Taddeo last November in Rochester, NY and had our honeymoon in Hawaii. That's the big news! We now live in Canandaigua, NY and love being out in the country." Close to home and to Potomac is Bern Hoffmann, "I'm around DC and have taken a long term sub position as a Kindergarten Assistant at Potomac for reunion and rest assured that Holly and I haven't forgotten about the unofficial 'Potomac '86 Travel Trailer Reunion' at Fred's in Charlottesville". (For those of you who missed the reunion, here's the plan. Sometime in the next year, we descend on Fred's farm in Charlottesville in a swarm of RV's and have a reunion weekend in the fields. Not sure if Fred has run the plan by his wife....). In town to give Fred a hand with RV hosting responsibilities will be Rob Cheek, who just moved to Charlottesville after several years in Brazil. He is working as a graphic designer when not drinking beer at Fred's bar. Charlotte Gaither is back in DC and has just finished a degree in Museum Studies and is working at the National Portrait Gallery. She is happy to be back in Georgetown and back to art after life in the finance world in San Francisco and New York. Andrew Ritter says he is surprised that he has totally fallen off of the Potomac radar since he and family (wife Lee Anne and 2 _ year old son Todd) live in Vienna, and he drives past Potomac everyday on his way to work in DC. Andrew still keeps in regular touch with Almus Thorp '85 and Bob Der (usually over something to do with the Redskins). Speaking of Bobby Der...he has had a year of ups and downs, literally. "My wife, Liz, and I moved out to the 'burbs last summer and we were hit by a car as pedestrians in October (very scary, I messed up my knee and Liz broke her arm, but we're relatively recovered now). A few months later, I was promoted to Managing Editor at Sports Illustrated Kids, and the biggest news of all: Liz gave birth to our first child, James Mason Der, on April 18! He's terrific and makes all the rest seem like a blur. Sorry I missed everyone at the reunion. Guess I'll have to wait 'till 25." Cabell Maddux continues to run his lacrosse empire, Madlax Sports (www.madlax.com) while also playing dad to twins who are nearing a year old. Serena Wille comes out from under cover to update, "I left my analyst position at the Central Intelligence Agency in December 2005 (lasting barely a year there), and started in January 2006 as a senior associate at the law firm of WilmerHale in Washington, DC (formerly Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale & Dorr), counseling clients on financial institution regulatory issues and anti-money laundering issues. I am having a ball! During the time between my two jobs, my husband, John Sides, and I spent three weeks in southern Africa, mostly in South Africa, on our belated honeymoon. It was a fabulous trip. John, a professor of political science at George Washington University, has the fall semester off, so in September we will spend two weeks in Italy." Jessica McGrew Kosa is another west coaster now, enjoying life in Berkeley. "I've just moved to Berkeley, CA. (new address: 488 Spruce St, Berkeley CA 94708). I'm keeping my part-time postdoc position at MIT, working from home. I'm still bellydancing, and learning rockclimbing with my husband and our son Tommy. Photo is us at Sequoia National park in March. Shawn Banerji and his wife, Rebecca, just bought a house in Connecticut so that they can escape New York City on the weekends without actually going suburban completely. Their son, Julian, will start Kindergarten at a Cathedral School in NYC, which the Banerji's chose because it reminded Shawn so much of Potomac: uniforms, assemblies, even juice and crackers. Their daughter, Beverly, will join Holly's daughter Lilly at the little pre-school around the corner. After ten years, I (Holly) have left ABC News to pursue a dream of opening a café geared toward healthy eating for children. Although you might not think it, there are lots of overlapping skills between being a restaurant entrepreneur and being a television producer. My husband, Pete, and I still live in NYC with our two kids, Lilly and Lucas. Kelley Hensley writes, "My husband, Jeff, and son James (2 years old) and I live in NYC. We attended the reunion lunch at Potomac in April. It was great to catch up with our classmates Bern Hoffmann, Charlotte Gaither, Holly Green Gordon, Shawn Banerji, and Abner Finley over lunch and see the exciting developments at school. Additionally, I am pregnant with our second child who is expected to arrive in September 2006. Stasia MacLane married Derek Reisfield in a beautiful ceremony in San Francisco on May 13, 2006. I had the privilege of being in the wedding party and spending three days with the happy couple in the days leading up to the wedding. Stasia and Derek now reside in Atherton, CA, with their dog Austen.

Ali Shapiro '84 and fiancée Joe.

Amelia and William, children of Katryna Nields '84.

From Carter Smith:

It was great seeing so many fellow classmates at our reunion on April 29, 2006. Annie Martin Simonds and her husband, Will, kindly hosted the event at their home in Great Falls, VA. The big news from Annie & Will is that they are expecting their third child who will be born this summer. Jihan Hassan de Iribarren and her husband, Jose, are now the proud parents of a baby girl, Alia Isabel. Born on Christmas morning, 2005, Alia "is an absolute joy." Jihan also reports that Jamie Stump '91 and his wife, Sarah, recently had a baby girl as well, and that David Sherman is "doing very well as co-owner of a successful restaurant in New York." Sarah Demas is living near Dupont Circle and teaches at the Art League in Alexandria and Montgomery College. She reports that last summer she had a solo exhibition in Bethesda and this year is showing her artwork (mostly portraits and figurative paintings in oil) in Baltimore at Sandarac Gallery. Ameila Knight Kidd lives in London and recently enjoyed visits from Whitney Kloman Leslie and Annie Martin Simonds. Amelia and her husband, Nigel, now have a three month old daughter, Imogen. She reports that her parents "live in the borders of Scotland", her brother, Joe '91, "is a mathematics teacher at Millfield School in Somerset", and her sister, Anna '96, "is surfing the waves of Bondi Beach" in Sydney, Australia where she now lives since September 2005. Alison Shirk Scherr lives in Brooklyn, NY with her husband, Adam, and son, Sam. She too is expecting a baby due in the fall. Alison is very happy in her work as a prop stylist for advertising, catalog, and magazine photoshoots. Carlos Cecchi and his wife, Lisa, welcomed their third child into the world in December, 2005 -- Marco Andrea. Carlos reports that "together with big sister, Fior Daniela, 4, and big brother, Piero Antonio, 18 months, we've got a full and big house". Carlos was excited to witness Dudley Winthrop tying the knot with Jennifer in October 2005. Jay Demas lives in Long Island, NY with his wife and reports that his sister, Eddie '80 successfully defended her Ph.D.

Class of 1985: Almus Thorp, Carl Lettow, Prentiss Vallender, Lay, Joe Colantuoni, Mary Dempsey Lembke, Robert Creamer, Enrico Cecchi, Cricky Long, Ayse Uzer Crowley, Chrissy Coughlin, Chris Arndt, Liz Padwe Muhlbaum, Julie Dugger, Christy Halvorson Ross, Annabelle Redway Dunn.

Lizzie Peet '85 was not able to attend Reunion because she was on stage in Miss Julie!!

at NYU this spring. Jay also notes that David Sherman "recently got engaged to Kristen DiStefano" and plans "to tie the knot after Kristen completes her masters degree in architecture at Cornell." Nikkia Johns Desprett writes, "My husband, John, and I are still here in the Austin, TX area (been here for 7 years now). I'm still at Dell Inc. as a Brand Operations Manager for our client and enterprise products -- managing product transitions. In March 2005, my husband and I opened our restaurant, called BB's Home Cooking Restaurant, in Georgetown, TX. My husband left Dell to pursue his dream & works the restaurant full-time now. I help occasionally on the weekends. If anyone's ever in the area, please stop by to see us. We just came back from vacation in Playa del Carmen, Mexico -- our first major vacation in over a year since the restaurant opened." As for me, Carter Smith, I've been able to take some great trips over the past year: one to Greenland where I went sea kayaking for two weeks, and another to Patagonia.

My sister, Nicole Kleman Neufeld '92 was my maid of honor. At the end of June, Victor and I are leaving Washington, DC and are moving our home base to Vancouver."

From the Alumni Office:

Christine Holt Merrifield reports, "Enjoying life with husband, James Merrifield, and children, Alex, 4, and Katherine, 2, in Rockville, MD." Amy Mancha Redstone writes, "Victor and I had a baby girl, Caitlin Anne Redstone, on June 5, 2006. She weighed 6lbs, 15oz and joins her big brother, Nathan, who is 3. Her middle name spelled with the final "e" is a nod to my good childhood friend, Anne Donovan '91. I hope that Caitlin finds a friend as good as Anne when she is growing up."

From Ama Amoako Adams:

Ally Bloom finished her emergency medicine residency (4 years long) and will begin working as an attending at the Virginia Hospital Center in August. Her son, Teddy, will be starting at The Country Day School this fall. Ally's family actually ran into Big John while taking his bus to the Country Day School Fair! Her niece, Jamie Gerstel, will be starting at Potomac this fall as well.

Sandy Miller's first book of poetry, Oriflamme, was recently published by Ahsahta Press. In addition, the second issue of her magazine on poetry and the arts, 1913, A Journal of Forms, was also published. Check out her website at <http://www.journal1913.org>. Sandy married Ben Doyle, also a talented poet, in Canandaigua on August 13, 2005. Up until recently, they were living in Granville, Ohio, where Ben taught creative writing at Denison University, and Sandy worked as an artist-in-the-schools for Columbus. Now, Sandy and her husband are headed to Hollins University in Roanoke, VA where Sandy will be teaching in the MFA writing program. Sandy also happily reports that she and her husband rescued and adopted an adorable black dog named Ronald Johnson, named after the (not famous) poet/cookbook writer. Ephraim Schum now lives in Falls Church, VA with his wife, Jen, and their three kids. Ephraim's daughter Julia is 7, Olivia (Livi) is 4, and their little brother Ezra is 2. Ephraim writes that his "wife is a great mom and watches them every day. She deserves a big vacation!" Ephraim is working as an Art Director at Schum & Associates Advertising and Graphic Design in McLean (a family-owned business) and also opened his own small company last year to take on a few smaller projects. Check out his website at <http://www.epholio.com>. He has also been pursuing a new interest in antique Volkswagens and is currently working on a 1967 Beetle.

Eliza Hitz is married to Randy Hartwig and now living in Salt Lake City, Utah. On May 10th, Eliza and her husband had a baby boy named Nathaniel Grant Hartwig. Eliza reports that Nathan "is healthy and eating and sleeping well." Eliza is working as a mental health therapist at a residential treatment center for adolescents, where she does family, individual, and group therapy. As for me (Ama), I now have a 7 month old son, Jonah Kofi Adams. Jonah is an absolute sweetheart and keeps me on my toes! I hope the rest of the class is doing well and hope to hear from you soon. Take care.

From the Alumni Office:

Katherine Doty writes, "Sorry to miss the reunion! I just finished the Marathons of Texas Challenge – ran Dallas, Houston & Austin in Dec, Jan & Feb – and I'll start law school in the fall." Andrew MacDonald reports, "In December of 2005, I finished a Masters in Architecture and a Masters of Urban Design at the University of Michigan. I have also bought a condo in the heart of downtown Seattle and believe it is one of the greatest places on earth to live. I hope all of my former classmates have achieved happiness in their lives and I am sorry I will not be in town for the reunion."

From the Alumni Office:

Mollie Ricker is at Stanford Business School and is engaged to be married in August of 2006. Dave John is currently the F-15c in Norfolk, VA and moving to England to continue service in the US Air Force. Dave is engaged to be married to Wendy Condrey in September of 2006.

From Jessica Ohly:

Hello All! Thank you to everyone who sent me updates and information about what they are up to. Sarah Swain wrote to let me know that she met up with a few of our Potomac classmates at Maderia's Centennial Celebration. Sarah, who is living and working in Chicago, reported that Sareena Dalla is working for CNN in Atlanta; Stephanie Osborn is running a tutoring center for kids in DC; and Jennifer Parsons is planning on going to law school next fall. Kristin Carlucci, Carolyn Starr Doolittle, Justis McEvelly, and Anne Gasho are all still living in the DC area. Kristin reports that she just finished her first year at John's Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies where she is pursuing a Masters in Strategic Studies and International Economics. Abby Sullivan '97 is in the same program. Kristin will spend the summer working at the Department of State, Bureau of Democracy and Global Affairs. She also wrote to let me know that Susan Reynolds is moving to Baltimore to get a dual masters degree from Johns Hopkins in Nurse Practitioner and Public Health. Carolyn Starr Doolittle is enjoying life back in McLean where she lives with her husband, Cameron, who works for the Corporate

Class of 1990 at their class dinner in May.

Executive Board, and her daughter, Grace, who will be two in November. They are expecting their second daughter in early October! Justis McEvilly is living in DC and working for a corporate finance company in Rosslyn. He finds time to play soccer and softball with coworkers in the area. Branching out from the DC area—Clay Whitehead reports that he is moving to the west coast to begin business school at Stanford this fall, and Whitney Duncan is still in San Diego working on her PhD in Anthropology at UCSD. She starts her master's thesis next fall and is trying to learn to surf and maybe even travel to South America before it begins. Coley Andrews is also on the west coast, living and working in San Francisco, and he writes that he occasionally sees Liz Oosterhuis and her fiancé, Octavio, who are living in Palo Alto. Back on the east coast it seems that many of us have immigrated to New York (some of us more permanently than others). Joanna Steckler is here and continues to organize the Potomac social network. Last I heard she was working at Tiffanys and living with Elena Sylos-Labini. She tries to see Kristen Rush and Neel Premkumar on a semi-regular basis. Kristen is enrolled at NYU and Sam Enoch is also in her program. Cliff Cone and Sol Kuckelman graduated from law school last year and were sworn in as attorneys in the State of New York this spring. Cliff is working for the New York Stock Exchange as an enforcement attorney and Sol is working for a small firm specializing in the representation of hedge funds and private equity funds. On a more exciting note Sol got married this spring! His wife, Linda Isaacson, is originally from South Africa. She is the medical director of Manhattan Veterinary Group. Yeats Bello and Cliff Cone were his best men, and the wedding was also attended by Lauren Goodyear, Sol's step-sister, who is a former Potomac English teacher. As for me (Jessica), I am also in Manhattan. I now hold a Master of Science in Education from The Bank Street College of Education, and will soon be a certified teacher in the State of New York. I am working in a fourth grade classroom as an associate teacher at a private school on the Upper East Side. It feels very similar to Potomac. I'll be spending part of my summer in Cambodia teaching Cambodian teachers about literacy education. Over Memorial Day weekend, I attended Catherine Smith's '99 wedding where I saw Rachel Shuler '99, Sasha Cooper-Morrison '99, Marian Smith '01, and Stirling Kelso '01. Marian is working on getting her masters in journalism from NYU and Stirling is working freelance for a variety of magazines and other publications. Stirling lives with Stephanie Amann '01 and Elena Knappen '01 both of whom are doing Teach for America.

Earlier this spring I met up with my brother, John Ohly '01 who is living in Philadelphia and working for a small executive placement agency, Stephen Gavula '01 who is living in Manhattan, and Skipper Calvert '01 who I believe is currently learning to fly for the Air Force (that or sitting on the beach, I can never keep it straight). I hope everyone is having fun! Keep smiling!

From the Alumni Office:

Elizabeth DeMuth Gresham writes, "I am happily married and living in England with my husband who is a movie producer. We are expecting our first son in June 2006."

From Jonathan Haworth:

It's hard to believe that we all graduated 6 years ago! But I am happy to say that everybody who I heard from is doing absolutely wonderfully. Aly Sudow is currently living in New York City but is planning to move to San Francisco towards the end of the summer. She has spent the last two years as a freelance photo editor for Newsweek, The New York Times, and now AOL. She is going to stop working in May, go visit her sister Elyse '95 when her baby is born. She will be traveling around Europe in June and she sees Ben Rose and Louisa Thomas in NYC often. Thiago Ize is now a computer science PhD student at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City specializing in graphics. He had a paper accepted by SIGGRAPH, a world renowned forum for the publication of computer graphics research. He is an avid rock climber, skier, and mountain biker. Alana Morrall is located in Washington, DC and will be graduating from American University in May with a Master's Degree in Arts Management. She also plays the violin with the AU Symphony Orchestra, and was a teaching assistant for Music Theory undergrads.

Class of 2000: Louisa Thomas, Shaw Vance, Aly Sudow, Ben Rose, Matt Meenan, Maura Myers Jonathan Rosenbaum.

Amanda Shaver '96 married Peter Van Emburgh (Bucknell '02) on July 30, 2005, in Alexandria, VA. Her brother, Tim '00', Peter Kloman '96, and Genevieve Grandison Marvin '96, were in attendance. The people in the picture are (L-R) Peter Kloman, Amanda Shaver Van Emburgh, Tim Shaver, Genevieve Grandison Marvin.

She currently works for the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra at the new Music Center at Strathmore located in North Bethesda, as a Development Associate, where she plans events to manage and cultivate donors in Montgomery County. After she gets her degree, she will be staying with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra doing fundraising, but moving up to Baltimore. She recently accepted a position as Membership Gifts Manager. Louisa Thomas is working at the New Yorker and loving it. She sees Jonathan Darman '99, and Aly Sudow often. She also lives above Juliana Bennison '01. Jendayi Croom graduated from Columbia University with a degree in economics and subsequently moved to Los Angeles to work for The Boeing Company. She is in the Business Skills Rotational Program which rotates her through different finance departments at the Long Beach site. She has completed her first one-year rotation as a cost analyst and is now working as a business analyst in the second rotation. As for continuing education goes, she enrolled in a certificate program at UCLA Extension and will be graduating with a Professional Designation in Business this upcoming September. She stays in close touch with N'Erin Brown and Velicia Sutton. Grant Myers moved to Los Angeles in 2004 after graduating with a degree in Film and Television from Boston University. For the past 2 years he has been working for Revolution Studios as the assistant to the Director of Development. He has worked on 15 or so films (including Rent, The Benchwarmers, and others.) He has gotten a few screen credits so keep an eye out for his name! He also is starting a new job at Davis Entertainment as a Creative Executive.

He lives in Santa Monica close to Evan Dannemiller and Tyler Jensen. Josh Mayer is in his second year of teaching English and Spanish at a boarding school in Steamboat, CO. I'll be moving to Boulder this summer to live there for a year. Then he is headed to Duke Law in fall '07. Tyler Jensen is currently residing in Los Angeles and works for Napster in the Music Programming / A&R department. He will have been with the company for one year in May. He graduated from the Gallatin School for Individualized Study at NYU in 2004 with a concentration in Music Business and Consumer Culture. Immediately after graduation he moved to Aspen, CO for a year to work the local nightlife scene but soon grew restless and moved to Los Angeles. He saw Evan Dannemiller at a comedy club last year and has talked with fellow LA-ers Jendayi Croom, and Grant Myers. John McCliggott is back in DC working at National Geographic. Carolyn Weiss is living in San Francisco with Mieke Baran and Lindsay Stowe. She works for a political consulting firm. Mieke works for a PR firm and Lindsay is getting her masters in nursing. We love it out here and love that so many Potomac people have visited. Keya Anjaria is currently living in London (just 5 minutes walk down the street from me!) and is finishing up her MA in Turkish Studies. She will be traveling back to Turkey for two months this summer and when she returns to London she will be starting her doctorate in the same subject and will be done with it in early 2009. As for me (Jonathan), I graduated with a degree in American Studies and Anthropology from Dickinson College in 2004. In September of that year, I moved to London to earn my Masters Degree in Cultural Studies and finally completed my MA in September of last year. I auditioned for a production company and am doing shows in London's West End at the moment. I also work part time as a bartender in the Soho area of Leicester Square in Central London. The repertory season for my play starts in October and will run for three months so if anybody finds themselves in London and wants to go, please let me know! I have been traveling a lot as well and have been all over Europe and even spent three weeks in South Africa.

From the Alumni Office:

Tracy Phillips is graduating from Dickinson College in June, 2006. Nicholas Adams will be attending UVA Law School in the fall.

From Katie Johnson:

With college half-way done, most members of the class of 2004 returned to the DC area this summer to work and play, feeling the weight of hard-earned cash disappear after weekend festivities as quickly as we earn it. Media and broadcasting remain a strong passion for the members of our class. Sam Simon is the executive producer of Northwestern University Radio Drama. Patrick Harris was featured in Billboard Magazine as an MTV Student Writer and is working for Asylum Records in New York City this summer. Maria Tchijov is the Health & Sexuality Editor at the University of Virginia's Cavalier Daily. Some classmates also are working on local campaigns with election season fast-approaching. Now that many of us have stopped playing organized sports, a few have dipped into the world of coaching. David Brady, Pete Dalla and Chris Mc Nerney coached a middle school lacrosse team in Charlottesville last spring. But Maggie Beddow is still running. She won the Baltimore Half-Marathon for Women 19 and under in October. Ryan Yonkman, Naval Academy stud, will attend Air Assault School at Fort Cambell, Kentucky this summer to learn how to fast rope out of helicopters to board ships at sea. Study abroad is the hot item for junior year. TJay Matton got a head start on everybody and lived in Copenhagen, Denmark last spring bouncing from European capital to capital. Caroline Reid will venture to London for fall studies and shopping, Binayak Mishra and Cooper will travel to Buenos Aires to learn the tango, and Mandy Gibson will do fieldwork in Kruger National Reserve Park in South Africa. That's all folks!

"We whose children have benefited from the vision of those who have gone before us can only repay our debt by opening the door wider to the future."

-1958-59 Potomac School Development Report

Dear Potomac Community,

In the following pages you will find this year's Annual Report. This list serves as an opportunity for us to acknowledge the many contributions of time and resources made to our School by our numerous volunteers and donors. Your stewardship allows us to ensure the advancement of Potomac's academic excellence now and for generations to come.

The opening day of school was especially meaningful this year. Senior "lifers" joined with kindergartners in a symbolic cutting of a handmade chain signifying the links of our K-12 curriculum –as the doors to our new Upper School facility were opened. The state-of-the-art facility was purpose built to create a model learning environment, enhance Potomac's dedication to the power of gathering and assembly, connect the classrooms to our beautiful natural environment, and promote formal and informal collaborative work sessions between faculty and students. Beyond the physical space are the increased programming opportunities available to us as we gradually grow the Upper School over the next several years. This fall a total of 25 additional students were added in the Intermediate and Upper Schools. Our physical growth allows for an influx of new ideas and new talents and our transportation initiatives support this growth. A special thank you to our current parent community for supporting these strategic goals.

The philanthropic generosity of our community allows us to continue our longstanding commitment to excellence in the arts, athletics and academics through both the Annual Fund and The Campaign for Potomac's Future. Both initiatives provide critical funds for professional growth and development opportunities to help us recruit and retain the best faculty. The Annual Fund helps relieve pressure on tuition year-to-year forced by increased costs in education, while the Campaign is as a more comprehensive programmatic, facilities and endowment initiative. The value of the countless volunteer hours logged at special events and during a typical school day is immeasurable and is, and always will be, the heart of our Potomac community.

Four trustees completed their terms of service on June 30th: LuAnn Bennett, Ivy Broder, John Nassikas '74, and James Fabiani. We thank them for their outstanding service as we welcome Tom Eckert, Gary Hill '79 and Susan Ross as new Trustees.

It is an honor to serve as Chair of the Board of Trustees at such a transformational time in the history of Potomac. Thank you for being both a partner and stakeholder in the success of our School. I know our founders would be proud of how far we have come, while remaining true to our values and traditions.

Sincerely,

Dorothy McAuliffe

Ways Of Giving To Potomac

There are many ways to make contributions to charitable organizations. It is important that donors to The Potomac School are aware of their options so that each individual can make his/her gift with the type of assets most suited to his/her own financial situation, based on existing tax laws and prudent financial planning. Several ways to contribute to The Potomac School are outlined below.

Cash Gifts

Most donors make outright cash contributions. The School gratefully accepts cash gifts and is also able to accept contributions via VISA and MasterCard. A cash gift entitles the donor to an income tax deduction in the year of the gift.

Securities

Appreciated securities are perhaps the best form of assets to use in making a charitable gift. In most cases, an outright gift of appreciated securities entitles the donor to an income tax charitable deduction for the fair market value of the securities and, in the case of securities which have been held for more than 18 months, the avoidance of capital gains tax.

Bequests

A donor may include a bequest to the School in his or her estate plan. Bequests may be for a specific amount, a percentage of the donor's estate, or even a residual portion.

Income Interest Gifts

Through an income interest gift, a donor may contribute the income from an asset while retaining ownership of that asset. In this case, The Potomac School receives income for a designated period of years after which the asset and any subsequent income return to the donor, his or her spouse, children, or other designated person. This form of gift offers both immediate and future tax advantages.

Real Estate

A donor may contribute various types of real property or a fractional interest in property to The Potomac School. Such real estate may be a personal or recreational home, farm, commercial building, or undeveloped property. In the case of a personal residence, including a vacation home, the donor may make a gift of property and reserve the right to occupy it for his or her life and for the life of a spouse. Real estate gifts offer the donor a variety of tax benefits.

Tangible Personal Property

If the donor gives a tangible asset, such as a work of art, which has appreciated in value, and if the asset is used by The Potomac School in its educational program, the donor receives a charitable deduction equal to the asset's full fair market value.

However, if the asset is not used by the School, the donor's charitable deduction is limited to his or her cost basis.

Life Insurance

A donor may contribute an existing life insurance policy which is no longer needed or he/she may designate the School the owner and beneficiary of a new policy. In either case, the value of the existing policy (or the donor's investment, if less) or the donor's gift to The Potomac School to cover annual premiums are fully deductible as charitable contributions.

Remainder Gifts

Through the remainder gift, a donor may contribute assets, such as securities or real estate, to The Potomac School and retain for life the income from those assets for himself or herself, his or her spouse, or both. A remainder gift permits the donor to take an income tax deduction for the charitable portion of the value of the gift. Furthermore, if the gift is in the form of appreciated securities or real estate, the donor may not pay capital gains tax on the appreciation.

For additional information call Christine Owens, Director of Alumni and Development, at 703-749-6330.

Volunteer Leadership

Volunteers Make the Difference

The Potomac School has a long tradition of volunteerism that enriches school life in many ways. The Gifts of Service listed below illustrate some of the activities that our volunteers work on each year, but it does not begin to measure their importance to Potomac. Our programs have a strength and spirit that is clearly evident throughout the campus because of the thousands of volunteer hours given so generously.

Gifts of Service

We would like to offer a special word of thanks to the many volunteers who give their time and talent so generously to:

THE POTOMAC SCHOOL NEEDS YOUR HELP!

If you can identify any of the students pictured below, contact the Alumni Office at 703-749-6356 or alumni@potomacschool.org.

Thank you to Eve Auchincloss Lilley '60, Sharon Smith '60 and Daphne vom Baur '60 who wrote in to identify the pilgrims pictured in our Winter issue.

At the core of every school is a belief,
a central idea which informs every action.

DEFINING EXCELLENCE

shapes every encounter, and determines every expectation. We hold these beliefs to be true.

Potomac Has a New Web Site

The Potomac School redesigned our Web site (www.potomacschool.org) in August, improving our ability to communicate with alumni, parents, faculty, and students. The site comprises both a public site and CampusNET, a password-protected intranet.

The new public site provides a glimpse into the richness and breadth of school life at Potomac, through photos and text, effectively communicating to people interested in our School. The new alumni site features news, galleries, and reunion information. You can find it easily under "Our Community." Log in to the Alumni Center to find class notes, directories, class lists and more. Need a password? Contact alumni@potomacschool.org.

CampusNET, the intranet section for students, faculty, and parents, was redesigned to enhance student/faculty communication and collaboration, and provide sophisticated educational Web tools for our students and faculty, as well as a one-stop resource for parents. It enables faculty to post announcements, news and assignments, and communicate with their students outside of the classroom in a way that resonates with our 21st century students.

For parents, CampusNET provides online directories of faculty, parents, and students as well as calendars, up-to-date information about campus events, school documents and forms, an improved athletics site, and information about parent activities.

We invite you to visit our new web site today.
